CURLEY OFF TO LEARN HIS FATE

STORY ON PAGE 2

Steele to Testify

Walter Steele (center) of Brockton, who was once accused by Mrs. Bertha Cote of murdering her husband, Rene, for which crime she now is on trial in Plymouth, arrives at the courthouse with his lawyer, Walter MacDonald (right), and Deputy Lewis S. Spring. The youth, who was a pallbearer at Cote's funeral, probably will take the stand late today. His testimony is expected to be of vital importance to the State's case.

Curley Very Weak Heads for Capital

Although warned by his physician he was risking his life, Mayor James M. Curley left Cohasset Hospital at 10:37 this morning to board the noon train for Washington and appearance in the federal district court, where he faces committal to jail for six to 18 months on a mail fraud conviction.

"I told Mr. Curley," said his physician, Dr. Edward H. Schott, "he was taking his life in his hands and if he goes to jail I don't think he will last long."

However, the government had ordered the 72-year-old mayor to surrender for disposition of his case, including payment of a $1000 fine.

In the limousine which took Curley to entrain at the Back Bay station were Mrs. Curley, obviously shaken by the strain; Dr. John H. Cauley, Boston health commissioner, and a registered nurse, Miss Helen Kinsley. Doctor and nurse will be in constant attendance on the mayor.

His daughter, Mary Curley Donnolly, and her brothers, George and Leo, were also scheduled to make the trip.

Curley appeared haggard and vitality-drained. Dr. Schott said his blood pressure shortly before he left the hospital was the highest it had been during his 10-day stay there.

An eye specialist examined him last night and reported the mayor's vision was bad. Schott reported Curley had a restless night.

The mayor has been given sedatives regularly but today he was given more than usual.

A score or more people were in front of the hospital to see him enter his car, but he gave them only a weak "hello." He was dressed in a striped blue suit and carried his hat in his hand.

Meanwhile, Corp. Counsel Joseph A. Scolponeti was in Washington where he conferred this morning with the mayor's defense counsel, chief of which is William E. Leahey.

Leahey said the defense had reached no decision as to what move it will make when Curley appears before Judge James M. Proctor, who pronounced the sentence.

Nevertheless the attorneys have affidavits as to Curley's physical condition and they hope to prevail upon the jurist to revoke or reduce the sentence to probation.

Donald Wakefield Smith, former member of the National Labor Relations Board, who was convicted with Mayor Curley on mail fraud charges, was denied a review of his case for the second time by the Supreme Court yesterday. Smith was sentenced to four to 12 months and fined $1000. Justice Murphy was the only member of the court who favored giving Smith a hearing.

New French Tax Ups Bread, Milk

PARIS, June 24 (AP)—Premier Paul Ramadier's drastic tax bill—which will raise prices of such items as bread, milk and cigarets—was adopted today by the French National Assembly after an all-night session. The vote was 302 to 241. Fifty-nine abstained. Both the Communists and the Rightist PRL opposed the bill.

The measure, which includes administration economies and the suppression of state subsidies, is designed to raise 136,000,000,000 francs ($1,142,000,000).

The Communists, clamoring for a reduction in military expenditures, attempted to place a ceiling of 150,000,000,000 francs (about $1,246,000,000) on the military budget, but were defeated, 408 to 184. A Socialist proposal to limit the military budget to 180,000,000,000 francs (about $1,512,000,000) was voted down, 324 to 279.

Wildcat Strikes Miners' Reply to New Law Curbs

PITTSBURGH, June 24 (AP)—A wave of wildcat strikes which began shortly after the Senate overrode President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley labor bill had closed at least 56 soft coal mines in five states today, idling more than 31,000 workers. Daily coal tonnage loss was unofficially estimated at more than 100,000 tons.

Alabama had 12 mines closed with 6000 idle, Pennsylvania 28 mines and 8900 men, West Virginia nine mines, 2625 men; Ohio three mines, 1500 men, and Illinois, four mines, 1700 men.

The walkouts, apparently a spontaneous protest against passage of the labor bill, came at a time when wage negotiations between John L. Lewis, president of the AFL-United Minc Workers' 400,000 members, and the mine operators had been broken off pending final disposition of the bill.

Meanwhile, the miners had been prepared to begin a 10-day vacation at Friday midnight, three days before expiration of the interim contract of the UMW and the federal government, signed in May, 1947.

One mine company spokesman said it was unlikely a new contract would be signed by July 8, when the miners are scheduled to end their vacation, and predicted confusion over the miners' 'no contract, now work" slogan.

Truman Calls NLRB On New Labor Law

WASHINGTON, June 24 (INS)—The White House announced today that it will confer this afternoon with members of the National Labor Relations Board, presumably on implementing the new Taft-Hartley labor law.

Under the law, which Mr. Truman denounced as unworkable and likely to foment industrial strife, the President is charged with making 16 appointments to government labor posts. They are:

Two new members of the National Labor relations Board which will administer the sharply revised Wagner Act, an NLRB general counsel, a director of the new Federal Mediation Service, and a 12-man labor-management panel to advise the director.

The first four appointees must be confirmed by the Senate which joined the House Monday in over-riding Mr. Truman's veto, 68 to 25.

Sen. Taft (R.) of Ohio, doubted the President would consult Congress in making the appointments.

Gerhard P. Van Arkel, present general counsel of the NLRB, resigned immediately after enactment of the Taft-Hartley bill, expressing grave doubts concerning the workability and fairness of this act. He will serve until his successor is available.

The new law gives the board counsel final and independent authority to investigate unfair labor practice complaints, bring charges and prosecute cases. Sen. Taft denied, however, that the NLRB official will become a labor relations "czar."

AFL President William Green declared Congress had made "a tragic mistake" and pledged a campaign for the law's repeal.

CIO President Philip Murray called a session of the CIO executive board for Friday. CIO General Counsel Lee Pressman will convene a meeting of all the organization's legal representatives Thursday.

Labor is expected to launch a flood of lawsuits.

The powerful CIO National Maritime Union, announcing it will fight the bill with everything we've got, said:

"A concentration camp able to hold 100,000 of us would have to be built. In this stand we will have the support of every Maritime Union, CIO, AFL and Independent.

Earl Bunting, president of the National Ass'n of Manufacturers said: "Congress carried out the clear mandate of the American people."

Steele Will Confront Bertha As He Tells Story on Stand

By ALAN FRAZER

PLYMOUTH, June 24—Mrs. Bertha Cote's charge that Walter Steele was her secret lover and the slayer of her husband is to be read to the jury today. Steele's denials of both accusations will also be read, but the 25-year-old Brockton automobile salesman will be here in person and probably will confront Rene Cote's widow in the courtroom late in the day. It will be the first time the pair have faced each other since last Jan. 20 in Brockton District Court when the widow refused to testify, Steele was freed, and the murder charge was shifted from his shoulders to hers.

Steele was at the courthouse yesterday but a last-minute change in Asst. Dist. Atty John R. Wheatley's plan of campaign deferred the Steele phase of the trial for one day.

Bloodstained articles taken from the living room where Rene Cote was bludgeoned to death in the black pre-dawn of last Dec. 28 were entered in evidence today by the State.

The petite and attractive defendant, garbed again in black suit and white blouse, remained impassive as the gruesome exhibits—stark reminders of that dark night—were displayed to the jury by Asst. Dist. Atty. Wheatley.

She swallowed nervously once or twice as Wheatley held up a pillow, with a dark, crimson stain spread over the center of its blue and white ticking and the accompanying pillow slip with a duplicate stain.

The stains were human blood. That was the testimony of Dr. Joseph T. Walker, the state police chemist and second witness called to the stand as a driving rain poured down outside the courthouse.

Wheatley presented the articles in evidence through the testimony of the first witness, Lt. Gustave C. Newman of the Brockton police, one of the first ranking officers to reach the Cote home in Harvard st., Brockton, on the morning of the slaying.

With the story of the defendant's accusations against Walter Steele, the prosecution delves deep into the alleged "consciousness of guilt" of Bertha Cote.

The story will be presented to the jury by Miss Claire Cassidy, Brockton police stenographer, as well as various policemen.

According to Wheatley, Mrs. Cote on Jan. 2, charged that Steele entered the Cote apartment twice on the early morning of Dec. 28, 1946, returning to beat up her husband in a row over money, after she had talked him out of it the first time.

She allegedly said Steele carried a piece of pipe and said he was "going to finish off that rat."

When reminded there was only one set of footprints in the snow, according to Wheatley, the widow changed her story and said Steele visited the apartment only once.

Mrs. Cote and the jury have already heard Miss Cassidy read

Today's Testimony

PLYMOUTH, June 24—The eighth day of the Cote murder trial opened today at 10:15 a. m. The Commonwealth called Lt. Gustave C. Newman of the Brockton police as its first witness. He was on the stand when court adjourned yesterday.

GUSTAVE C. NEWMAN
Direct Examination

Q—I think you told us that you made observations when you entered the front room, tell us what you saw. A—There was a body on the floor and a Christmas tree on the floor. There was a waste paper basket turned over. There was a blanket thrown over an end table. And a pillow on the divan. There was a pair of men's pants over a chair.

Q—Any more men's clothes. A—No, I don't recall any more.

Q—Did you notice a rug in the room? A—Yes, there were no blood stains on it and it was lying flat.

A—And on the divan? A—On the divan were three cushions all in place and on the center cushion there was a pillow.

Wheatley requested Townes to step to the bench for conference.

The witness identified a maroon divan cushion, a powder blue and peach-colored quilt, a pillow and a pillow case as articles he had seen in the Cote living room the morning of the murder. Lt. Newman was unable to identify a pair of pajamas as those worn by Cote when the body was found.

Wheatley entered all the articles except the pajamas as state exhibits. As the prosecutor handed the pillow case to the clerk to be marked for identification, it dropped, exposing a dark red stain as big as a man's hand.

Q—Wheatley shows a small cloth—Do you know about this. A—That was found on the wash bowl in the bathoom that morning.

Q—Did you find it. A—Yes.

As Wheatley handed it to Olsson it turned out to be a small washcloth of blue turkish toweling, badly stained.

Q—I am going to hand you this envelope and ask if you'll open it and tell what that is and where it was found.

A (shaking something out into his hand)—The smaller pieces were found on the divan. This last piece was found in the blood spot.

Q—What blood spot. A—To the left of the body.

Q—Where did you say the other

Barbara Belmore's Story: 'I Hope She Will Be Freed'

By ALAN FRAZER

PLYMOUTH, June 24—A red-headed mite of a dancer, clad in white with a mink stole draped on her shoulders and a platinum ring with nearly two dozen diamonds on her finger, made a breath-taking entry into the courthouse.

It was Barbara Belmore.

Upstairs Rene Cote's widow was on trial for her life.

Downstairs, four feet, nine inches, of scintillating woman, with whom Rene Cote spent most of the Christmas holidays and the evening before his murder, held court for the press.

"I hope Mrs. Cote goes free," said Miss Belmore amid a waft of perfume which filled the outer office of Superior Court Clerk George C. P. Olsson.

"I hope she walks out of that courtroom a free woman to rejoin her little daughter.

"I certainly feel that way. If I could do anything to help her, I would be only too glad to do it, but there's not a thing I can do.

"If I had known he was married, it would have been a different story. I only can hope she will be reunited with her little girl."

Miss Belmore, whose non-professional name is Nellie Strypek, raised an arm covered with a shoulder-length black glove, and adjusted the mink neckpiece to keep it off the floor, to which it almost reached.

Two cherry-red lips parted in a wide smile exposing two rows of tiny, even teeth, as a reporter quipped about her size.

She said: "Sure I'm tiny—92 pounds—well, maybe 93. For my profession, that's wonderful.

"No, I've never seen Bertha Cote. I don't suppose I ever will, now. I'm off for New York tonight."

The accused widow, upon learning of the Leominster dancer's hopes for her acquittal, said she was grateful. There was no recrimination.

She left her sympathy for Bertha Cote and her statement—read to the jury by Asst. Dist. Atty. John R. Wheatley—upon agreement of Atty. Eben G. Townes, who is trying to save Bertha Cote from the electric chair or life imprisonment.

BARBARA BELMORE
Deposition Read in Court

Both sides agreed to what Miss Belmore would testify if she took her diminutive self to the witness stand. This spared Miss Belmore an ordeal. It saved Mrs. Cote an emotional experience. It cheated 135 spectators, jamming every section of the courtroom, of a glimpse of the entertainer they had waited for all day to see.

The statement said in part:

"I was introduced to Rene Cote by Charles Gorman who was working with me at the Frolics at Salisbury Beach in the summer of 1946. Charley asked me to go out with him in his company. He was kind and very nice. He was not a smart alec but very friendly.

"He said he was unmarried. I saw him over the holiday, Labor Day. Later he dropped in at my home and I was not there and he talked with my mother. Prior to that I gave him the pictures you have, the last day at the beach. He told me to put something nice on them and I did."

She said he wired her before Christmas and they met in Boston. Cote drove her to Leominster and visited her over Christmas.

On Friday night, the evening before the early-morning murder, he picked her up at her home and drove her to Boston and they had dinner. Then they went to the Copley Plaza where Gorman was playing and she had a glass of wine and he a Coca Cola.

She took the 11:50 train to New York.

During the summer, she interpolated here, she was in Sherbrooke, Que., and he appeared, saying he was buying automobile parts, and they were at the same hotel two or three days. Then he drove her to Rutland, Vt., with the wardrobe mistress and stage manager.

"He said he was living with a married sister and her two children and always told me and my family he was single," stated Miss Belmore. "On Christmas Eve he told me one of the children had died.

"He never spent freely. I never saw him with large sums of money. At no time did he give me a dime or offer me money. He said he was buying out Mr. Earle, his employer, and setting up garages throughout the state.

"I told him I always had a lot of boy friends. He never made any improper advances. There was respect both ways. I told him I was too much in love with my work to marry."

She said Cote got some liquor for her for Christmas but she paid him $20 for it.

"At no time when I was in his company did he ever say he was married or had a family," she said. "The first time I learned he was married was after I read the papers and learned of his murder."

Bradford Admits Defeat, to Accept Solons' Tax Plan

Conceding the overwhelming defeat of his entire $59,000,000 tax program, Gov. Bradford today indicated he would abandon efforts to salvage any part of it and would accept the $17,000,000 tax plan recommended by the joint legislative way and means committee to balance the State budget.

The substitute plan was to come before the House today.

Gone with the wind were the Governor's recommendations for a 2 per cent general sales tax, a doubling of the State income tax and an increase in the gasoline tax.

One after another the drastic revenue-raising proposals were rejected by unanimous vote of the joint House and Senate committee, made up largely of leaders of the Governor's own party, and the substitute plan was adopted with equal unanimity.

Rep. Roy C. Smith (R.) of Holbrook, chairman of the House ways and means committee, who announced the new legislative tax program in a statement to Speaker Frederick B. Willis for delivery to the House today, reported:

"Your committee on ways and means is unwilling to saddle the taxpayers of the Commonwealth at this time with additional taxes, unless it can be demonstrated that further revenue is needed and that such additional revenue will definitely result in a reduction in the burdensome tax load on real estate. Your committee believes that its primary duty is to balance the state budget."

The new taxes recommended by the committee are:

1—An additional tax of 1½ per cent on net income of business and manufacturing corporations, to yield $11,000,000.

2—An additional excise of 55 cents per gallon on liquor containing more than 24 per cent alcohol by volume, to yield $3,000,000.

3—An additional excise of $1 per barrel on beer and other malt beverages, to yield $3,000,000.

Although the Republicans held a caucus and bound party members to support this program, it was expected that Rep. George W. Dean (R.) of Oakham, would press for a one cent a gallon gasoline tax to be included in the report.

A prominent Republican member of the taxation committee was reported planning to include the general retail sales tax.

While not a part of this program the ways and means committee planned to recommend that an increase of one-half of one per cent be made in the tax imposed by the state on wagers at horse and dog tracks to raise $750,000 to meet the increasing cost of old age assistance.

Rep. Smith said he expected Gov. Bradford to accept the entire tax program and did not look for any further tax message from him.

Gov. Bradford said the committee's report does not meet the need for state aid to local education and that cities and towns will still require assistance for highway construction and maintenance. He said he approved balancing the state budget without a state tax on cities and towns.

Ration 15-State Gas to Stations

DETROIT, June 24 (INS)—Gas station operators in Michigan and 15 Midwest states were notified today that the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana will ration gasoline deliveries.

The rationing will begin immediately and continue through August.

The amount of gas to be curtailed has not been revealed, but the cut will be based on last year's deliveries.

Industry leaders estimated that gas consumption is up 6 to 10 per cent over last year, for these reasons:

1—Motorists are using their cars more.

2—The number of passenger cars in 1947 will exceed the prewar level and there are approximately 25 per cent more trucks.

3—Farm use of gasoline has doubled because of the greater number of tractors.

Gambling, Dope, Jewel Theft Clues Traced in Siegel Killing

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 24 (AP)—A maze of possible clues, including underworld double-crossing, gambling, narcotic and stolen jewelry operations and a gangland style Mexican slaying were searched today by authorities seeking to learn who rubbed out Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel—and why.

Four of nine .30-caliber bullets, fired through a window by an unidentified assailant, snuffed out the life of the 42-year-old former public enemy in the home of Mrs. Virginia Hill, Alabama heiress.

So tightly were the underworld curtains drawn about the mystery that Ernest Roll, chief deputy district attorney, told newsmen:

"It's going to be a hard job to get to the bottom of this thing. There might have been a hundred different people who wanted Siegel out of the way."

In Paris, the thrice-wed Mrs. Hill, known for her flair for jewelry and her lavish spending on nightclub parties, told reporters that news of Siegel's death came as a "great shock" to her.

Police here said she and Siegel had been friends for several years and that he had numerous other feminine friends in the Hollywood film colony.

Siegel was divorced in Reno last August by Estelle Siegel, who charged mental cruelty. She was awarded custody of their two children, Millicent, 16, and Barbara, 11. The Siegels were married in 1928.

The ex-public enemy, who police said had been seeking control of bookmaking in the West after leaving New York 10 years ago, was part owner of the fabulous Flamingo Gambling Club in Las Vegas, Nev.

California authorities, seeking to learn what, if any, connection Siegel had with the narcotic traffic, took cognizance of two shootings near the Mexican border.

Mexicali's police chief, Juan Menesen, who recently organized a drive against narcotic smugglers, was fatally machine-gunned as he drove through the town Sunday night.

That same night government agents captured a man, whose identity was not disclosed, after a 200-shot, 45-minute gun battle near Calexico, Cal., across the border from Mexicali.

They reported $35,000 worth of narcotics was found in his possession.

Meantime, Police Chief Anderson reported he has obtained information indicating Siegel was involved in a stolen jewelry racket operating between here and New York.

From the sheriff's office also came word that search was being made for a man said by officers to have helped kill James Ragen, 65, racing news operator.

Ingalls Couple Go on Trial In Coast Slavery Case

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 24—The slavery trial of a former Bay State lawyer and his wife, accused by their diminutive middle-aged Negro maid, opened here today in Federal court. They are charged with keeping her in involuntary servitude.

The government is basing its case on the testimony of Theodora Lawrence Jones, 57, a five foot, 100-pound maid who has spent nearly a lifetime in the service of the couple.

Also expected to take the stand during the trial are Alfred Wesley Ingalls, 64, former Lynn attorney and once a Massachusetts state representative, and his wealthy wife, Elizabeth, 62.

A. W. Ingalls

The couple were arrested four months ago by the FBI at Coronado, following information given authorities by a relative.

Charges of slavery have been branded by Ingalls and his wife as "ridiculous," according to an Associated Press report.

Theodora was 17 when she was befriended by the present Mrs. Ingalls — then Miss Elizabeth Kimball, a missionary school teacher in the reconstructed South.

When Miss Kimball married her first husband, Walter Harmon, they took Miss Jones to Washington, D. C. Ten years later the Harmons were divorced.

Government attorneys said they will present evidence to show that during the Washington period an incident occurred which gave the mistress a hold over the maid—a "skeleton in the closet" affair, the attorney declared, which caused the maid to fear arrest for a supposed offense.

In 1918, the former Alabama teacher married Ingalls, a descendant of Edmund Ingalls, founder of the city of Lynn.

They came to California in September, 1946.

The indictment charges the couple with violation of the 13th (anti-slavery) amendment to the Constitution and specifically with persuading Miss Jones to accompany them from Berkeley, Cal., to Coronado last Oct. 11 "to be held as a slave."

Ingalls will act in his own defense with Clifford Fitzgerald, San Diego attorney.

Revere Man Held In Deluxe Holdups

Mathew T. Kent, 35, of Walnut ave., Revere, who staged deluxe holdups with taxicabs waiting for him, according to police, was held in $20,000 today after pleading not guilty in Malden District Court to two charges of armed robbery. The case was continued to Monday.

The Revere man, father of two children, was charged with a holdup of the Trook package store, Salem st., Malden, involving $100 and one bottle of liquor, and another job at a Main st., Malden, package store, with loot of $200 and a bottle of liquor.

Arrested last night while using a cab, police said they recovered the $100 and bottle of liquor taken from the Trook store, as well as a loaded gun which Kent allegedly hurled from the cab.

Persecution Complex Laid To Chandler

Obsessions, superstitions and neurotic psychoses allegedly suffered by Douglas Chandler, expatriate newsman on trial for treason, were traced today by Dr. John Adams Abbott, Massachusetts General Hospital psychiatrist, as he resumed the stand in Federal Court today to conclude his testimony.

Testifying for the defense, Dr. Adams said Chandler had told him Jewish doctors were persecuting him while he was at the Brighton Marine Hospital for treatment. The doctor said the defendant told him he drank a lot of milk as an antidote against possible poisoning.

Despite the highly technical nature of the testimony the courtroom was crowded as the trial continued in its fourth week. Attorneys expressed opinion the case would be given to the jury by Friday.

Cabbie Attack Jury Disagrees

Chief Justice John P. Higgins dismissed the jury trying the case of George A. Homsy, 30 year-old cab driver, charged with the attempted criminal assault on a young church social worker, when they reported they were unable to reach a verdict after nine hours of deliberation.

Homsy, who lives in Amherst st., Roslindale, was on trial for allegedly attempting a criminal attack upon Mrs. Miriam C. Simms, 20 Museum rd., Back Bay, social worker and wife of an Army veteran.

According to testimony Homsy locked Mrs. Simms in his cab last March and twice tried to attack her. Homsy told the court the young wife made al lthe advances. Fre in $1500 bail Homsy will go to trial again in the fall.

Father Admits Strangling Baby

MASON, Mich., June 24 (AP)—State Police Capt. Lawrence J. Meehan said today Clifford Mongar, 23, admitted suffocating his seven-months-old daughter Myra, "because I didn't want anyone else to have her."

Meehan quoted Mongar, a tenant farmer estranged from his 22-year-old wife:

"I put my hand over her nose and mouth and held it there for about three minutes. Then I laid her down in her baby buggy and covered her up."

The child was found dead in the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Peabody, parents of the estranged wife, near here Sunday.

BUBBLE ON!

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Bubble gum isn't to blame for junior's upset stomach or for any other of his pains, except maybe aching jaws, the food and drug administration said today.

The results of tests "do not warrant any conclusion that bubble gum contains toxic ingredients," the agency said.

The bubble gum tests followed reports from some areas that children were possibly being made ill by chewing it.

Vermont to Put New Police on Paula Hunt

Vermont authorities today promised that the files in the mysterious disappearance of Paula Welden last Dec. 1 never will be closed until she has been found alive or dead and that the hunt will go on with renewed vigor after July 1.

This was in answer to criticism by the missing girl's father, W. Archibald Welden, at Stamford, Ct., after a conference on the manner in which the case has been handled during the past seven months.

Paula Welden

The grieving father had stated that Vermont's police facilities, boasting but a single state investigator, were no more advanced than they were 100 years ago.

Gov. Gibson declared that the new state police force of about 60 men will go on the case July 1, the inauguration date.

The group was voted into being by the Legislature as a result of the disappearance of Paula, who vanished on Glastonbury Mountain one Sunday afternoon after she left the Bennington College campus for a hike.

At the same time, students at Bennington who have pledged varying amounts to aid in raising the $5000 reward offered for solution of the case declared they want the reward money to stand.

It had been stated by authorities that the reward would be withdrawn if the case was not solved before July 1.

One more matter came to light as a result of the latest conference at Stamford.

Officials admitted for the first time that the lie detector used in Chicago had been brought east and had been used on a number of suspects.

Earlier, this report was circulated but Vermont officials denied the detector had been used in Bennington.

It now develops that the Bennington suspects went voluntarily to take the tests at Williamstown, Mass., where the machine was set up in a hotel.

It was further learned that the lie detector is to be used again and that a number of persons who never were questioned in the case are now sought.

Boy Gun Toter Faces Lineup

A frightened 15-year-old grammar school student faced a headquarters lineup today in the aftermath of a spectacular gun battle with police, during which he fired five shots and held 27 policemen at bay until finally overpowered in an alley while using another young hostage as a shield.

Edward Bancroft of Quincy st., Roxbury, later will be arraigned in Roxbury juvenile court.

He is held on charges of suspicion of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to murder Patrolman James Bray and the boy hostage, William Ronan, 15, of Warren st., Roxbury.

Also held for questioning was the suspect's brother, Horace, 17, a Boston Trade School student, from whose room the younger brother allegedly obtained two guns and 250 bullets.

ROAD HOLDUP NETS $630

Halting his car in Warren st., Roxbury, to avoid striking two men in its path, Louis Byer, 63, of Columbia rd., Dorchester, was robbed by the pair of his wallet containing $630, he reported to police today.

Body of Missing Man Found in Quincy Quarry

A heart attack, after which he toppled into a water-filled quarry, was blamed today for the death of Peter Scibilio, 63, of Garfield st., Quincy, whose body was found off Quarry st., near his home. He had been missing two days.

Home Garden Forum

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head of the Vegetable Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School.

Q—Is spraying or dusting best for controlling squash vine borers?

A—Both methods of control are effective if used properly. The important point to keep in mind is that the base of the plant must be covered with poison at all times to keep the young borers from entering the plant. Dusts or sprays must be applied often, and after every rain for good control.

Q—Is D. D. T. effective in controlling thrips on gladiolus?

A—Thorough dusting every week or 10 days has given good results.

Q—Why is white corn not used more in this area? Does it have poor quality?

A—White corn is not as popular as yellow corn because we feel that yellow corn has a little higher food value. Most people around the Boston area eat yellow corn because of habit. If picked at the proper time, white corn is just as good as regards flavor and quality.

Q—Is it too late to set out shrubs now?

A—There is still time to set shrubs provided good stock is used. If the plants have started to develop leaves and they look healthy and a good ball of earth is on the roots, set them, water thoroughly and do not allow soil to dry out around the plants.

Q—Is D. D. T. poisonous if handled?

A—In dry form, D. D. T. is not poisonous externally. If dissolved in oil as for household sprays, it can be absorbed through the skin and be harmful. Ready mixed dust is safe to handle.

Q—Can iris be moved while in bloom?

A—Iris can be moved at most any time, but the best time is after it has bloomed. July is a good month to divide and move this plant.

Cote Trial

the stenographer's record of questioning of the widow on Dec. 28.

From the lips of the slender stenographer, who was dressed becomingly in white, the jury learned that the police interrogators told Mrs. Cote her explanation of events was:

"Confused." "A jumbled mess." "An awful mess." "Fantastic." "Concealing things." "Not exactly a fabrication, but changed."

There was one point that stood out. Throughout, Mrs. Cote denied being greatly upset about "another woman."

She resisted police attempts to erect jealousy as a motive for Rene Cote's murder.

As far as she would go was the following:

"I probably was a little bit jealous, I wanted my home and I loved my baby."

She argued:

"Rene went out with me when he was married to another, so I was not too surprised he would do the same thing to me. He said don't worry, dear, I still love you."

There was only one thing more she could do to try to convince the police she was not jealous of Barbara Elmore, according to the state's theory. She said—at the later interrogation, to be related today—that she went out with another man.

While Steele admitted having been out with her, he denied the intimacies which she told about. The state claims that her story about intimacies was to wipe out the last suspicion that her husband's affair with another woman upset her enough to cause her to kill.

The idea, it is alleged, might have been planted in her mind when a police lieutenant asked her during the Dec. 28th questioning:

"Have you ever done any cheating on your husband?"

"No," said Mrs. Cote.

Mrs. Cote told the police on the evening of Dec. 28 that when she arrived home from playing cards shortly after midnight that morning, and found her husband there—he had been in Boston on a date with Miss Belmore—she said:

"Hi, Chum, how'd you make out in Boston."

Cote, who had told her he had to go away on an automobile matter, replied:

"OK, Bob."

That is the nickname for Mrs. Cote used by her family and friends.

She offered him lunch but he had eaten, so she got his pajamas. He went to bed on the divan in the livingroom and she sat there in her nightgown and robe, but he said he was too tired to talk.

She went to bed in her room but was awakened by the little girl, Barbara Ann, aged 4, hitching her crib over to the center of the nursery and pulling on the light. She got up, put the child back where she belonged, put out the light and returned to bed.

After an indeterminate time she heard the floor boards in the hall squeak. At first she did not think much of it but grew suspicious when she heard "mumbling." She thought it might be her daughter and got up but the light was not on.

Then she heard a man's voice—it might have been "singular or plural," she said. The voice said:

"I—or we—gave you $1500. You promised us a car. Now we understand you're leaving Earle Motors the first of the year. We either want the money or the car."

"Our telephone was in the kitchen but I thought if they heard me calling the police they would do something to me," said Mrs. Cote. "Then I heard a thud and I ran down to tell Mrs. Gallagher on the second floor."

"Was there any light in the front room," she was asked.

"No," she replied.

"I pounded frantically on Mrs. Gallagher's door and then ran down to Mrs. Winberg's on the first floor. She came up and looked at Rene and called the police.

"Before I ran down, I had snapped on the night light in my room. As I did, I heard, not heavy running, but a sort of heavy step and scuffle as if somebody was trying to get by in a hurry and still didn't want to be heard or something.

"By the time I turned and reached the head of the stairs, he was downstairs. By the time I switched the lights on, he was down at the bottom and I caught sight of a pipe."

"You saw him at the foot of the stairs?"

"Yes. I couldn't see enough. I saw the tail end of his coat. He had something under his arm, sticking out as he went around the corner."

"How did that visitor get out ahead of you if you got up when you heard the voices and ran downstairs?"

"It was after I heard he was going across the kitchen floor. When I got to the top of the stairs, he was already partly down and going around the corner."

"How did he get in?"

"The door lock was broken."

"It seems strange he went right to the living-room where your husband was. Wouldn't it seem he would try the bedroom first?"

"Yes, maybe it was someone who knew us, knew the house well."

"Didn't you think it strange that that man or those men would talk business with your husband at that hour in the dark?" "I was too frightened to think of that."

"You didn't get up to investigate?" "I did."

"You didn't make yourself known?" "I was frightened."

"You heard no outcry?" "No."

"After you came back upstairs with Mrs. Winberg, did either of you touch anything?" "I don't think so."

"Did you touch him?" "I think I touched his pajamas."

"Did you turn him over?" "No."

"Did Mrs. Winberg?" "No."

"Did you know he was on the floor when you went to get Mrs. Winberg?" "No."

"But didn't you ask her to come up because he was unconscious?" "I didn't know he was unconscious. I said he had been beaten badly."

"How did you know that?" "I figured he was from all the thumping in there."

"You hadn't been in to see?" "I put Barbara's light on. I saw him on the floor, then I went downstairs."

"This is the first time you said you saw him before you went downstairs. You didn't say you heard any sign of a struggle. You didn't tell us anything this morning about a struggle or thumping. You told us you hadn't seen him. Do you remember telling us the light was on in his room?"

"The light was on in his room?" "No. The doors were closed when I shut them myself last night."

"You didn't hear any struggle?" "Yes, terrifying, as if someone was pushed against the door, or him falling on the floor."

"You heard no outcry?" "Like a—nothing out loud."

"He didn't call for you, say help me or stop it?" "No."

"Did you hear your husband's

Chevrolet Opens Giant New Plant

FLINT, Mich., June 24 (AP)—A giant new assembly plant, designed to turn out 60 passenger cars and 20 trucks an hour, has been brought into production here by Chevrolet motor division of General Mortors Copr.

When a second new postwar plant at Van Nuys, Cal., is ready for operation, Chevrolet, largest volume producer in the industry, will have a daily capacity of 9000 units.

The Chevrolet expansion is part of the preparation for an expected battle with Ford for leadership in the lower priced car field. Several new Ford plants are to be brought into operation late this year.

Greek Food Sent U. S. Seen as 'Token Gifts'

NEW YORK, June 24 (AP)—James A. Booras, president of the American-Greek Chamber of Commerce, says he believes the food parcels coming to this country from ill-fed Greece are merely sent as expressions of gratitude to Americans who have sent clothing and food to Greek citizens.

Booras said he doubted that more than 50 or 60 of the estimated 40,000 parcels shipped from Greece contained meat, and these contained "token gifts" of Greek sausage. In general, the packages contain "non-essential dainties" such as nuts, candy, and olive oil, he said.

Singer Andy Russell Sued by Ousted Agents

LOS ANGELES, June 24 (AP)—Singer Andy Russell, under his legal name of Andrew Rabago, was sued for $343,750 damages in Superior Court by his former managers, Personalities, Ltd., who alleged breach of contract.

WESTFIELD June 24—Conrad Furrow was reported resting comfortably—on two full sized beds—today following a foot operation here at Noble Hospital.

Furrow, who is 7 feet 8½ inches tall, gave doctors and nurses a few anxious minutes until he explained how they could care for him.

"Just get two full sized beds, place them together and then I can lie catty-corner," he explained.

They did this and the patient is getting along fine.

Priest Reveals Red Atom Blast

CHICO, Cal., June 24 (INS)—Rev. Bernard Hubbard, famed "glacier priest," in a copyrighted interview with the Chico Record said Russia had an atomic energy plant a year ago but it blew up.

Fr. Hubbard, noted for his exploration of glaciers and volcanos in Alaska and the Aleutian chain of islands, said the blast resulted from lack of Russian "know how."

Fr. Hubbard, head of the geological department at Santa Clara University, declared that if freedom of travel could be given to outside newsmen his information could be proved.

Do you have to force your child to take a laxative?

DOES your youngster rebel at the laxative you give him? Do you have to force it down his protesting little throat?

That's such needless, undeserved punishment! Today, millions of mothers give their children Ex-Lax when they need a laxative. And how the youngsters love its delicious chocolate taste!

Most important, Ex-Lax is a laxative that parents have learned to trust! It does its work thoroughly! And Ex-Lax is gentle, too. It is biologically tested for effective action.

Many doctors use Ex-Lax in their practice.

Try Ex-Lax yourself! It's America's favorite family laxative...over 40 million boxes sold last year. As a precaution, use only as directed. Still only 10¢. Economy size, 25¢.

voice at all?" "Not one word."

"Did you say to Mrs. Winberg three men meat him up?"

"I don't know if I said three. I probably thought there was more than one in there, it was such a loud shuffle. That was why I wanted to go down and get help."

"You didn't have an argument and hit him with anything?" "No, I did not."

"You are quite sure of that?"

"I'm positive."

"You and he were not very friendly." "That isn't true."

"Did you know that man you saw in the house?" "I didn't see him."

"You are telling a very fantastic tale. Why did you say there were three men?"

"I don't know why. I thought there were more than one."

"Didn't you say two were waiting [illegible] Winberg told you there was only one set of footprints? What are you concealing?"

"When I heard the person going downstairs, it sounded as though it was more than one. The steps were so fast, I thought there were two. As he went downstairs, the footsteps hastened, quickened."

"And that sounded like more than one."

"That's right. There probably could have been 100 at that time."

"How did he go through the kitchen."

"Sort of not too fast till he reached the kitchen. Fast downstairs."

"You heard scuffling?" "Yes."

"You didn't go to find out what it was?" "I listened."

"You put on your bed light?" "Yes."

"You saw a man and followed?" "He was way ahead of me."

"And you went down directly after him?" "Yes."

"You came back and saw your husband with Mrs. Winberg?" "That's right."

"Yet, you told Mrs. Winberg he was unconscious and you told us you went into Barbara's room and saw him and he was unconscious."

"Let me try. I put the light on in Barbara's room. I saw my husband when Mrs. Winberg was at my side. That was the first time."

"That man carried a pipe."

"I don't know what it was. It was sort of round."

"Do you mean to say you could see a man at the foot of the stairs?"

Mrs. Cote drew a diagram and said:

"The street light shines into my kitchen. I saw a person pass there. I could not see outside till I snapped on the light at the top of my stairs."

"How could you see a man at the foot of the stairs from the dim light in your bedroom?"

"I grant you that you are right."

"First you said the foot of the stairs. Now you say upstairs."

"I saw a man's shadow pass by my window going toward my stairs."

"You saw him head for the stairs."

"Yes. I snapped on the light when I saw his coat."

"You didn't tell us that before."

"I didn't mention the fact I snapped on my light, but I did. It's the gospel truth. I couldn't see downstairs."

"That was our contention." "I wouldn't say that."

"One time you said after the man went out you put the light on in Barbara's room and saw your husband, then went downstairs."

"Let me talk, please. When I saw my husband on the floor, I went to get Mrs. Winberg. When I came back, Barbara was at the top of the stairs."

"You said Barbara was asleep."

"No."

"Your story is very confused, Mrs. Cote. It is very confusing from the start and fantastic."

"You concealed the fact that your brother had a fight with your husband." "I told you that."

"After I told you." "That is right."

"There is something you are trying to conceal from us. You are having us run around in circles. It is not exactly a fabrication but the story is changed. You would have seen your husband on the floor if you put the light on in Barbara's room."

"Then it adds up that I didn't put the light on. You remember I said I listened and heard mumbling. That is when I put on my light. I went down to Alice Winberg. I did not go into Barbie's room. I feared someone was in the house."

"A mother's first instinct is to protect her baby."

"She was sleeping."

"Yet she was at the head of the stairs when you came back." "That's right."

"The only mumbling was when they were discussing $1500."

"When I first heard it, I was sleeping and it sounded all mumbling to me. The actual words

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backaches and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

started when I went to the door. I was frightened. I started to telephone, but I was frightened so I went downstairs."

"All you had to say was emergency police."

"You don't think of that in excitement. Isn't that true?" "It may be so."

"I will tell you anything you want to know."

"Your story is a jumbled mess."

"He had evidently gone out ahead of me. The door downstairs was open."

"How did he go out ahead of you if you went right downstairs." "No."

"Mrs. Cote, you are making an awful mess of it."

"I am telling you gentlemen the truth. I am tired. I have been questioned all day."

"Do you want us to believe somebody came on a business deal and sat in the dark at 4 a. m.?" "I don't know."

"You were either jealous or angry."

"No, gentlemen, you are not on the right track if you think I had anything to do with my husband's death."

"Then you think he cheated somebody out of $1500?" "Yes."

"Have you ever done any cheating on your husband?" "No."

"What was the condition of the living-room?" "The Christmas tree was down. I'm not sure about the hassock. It was in the middle of the floor. A little wastebasket was tipped over. Nothing else."

"The pillow was on the divan?" "Yes."

"You are sure you heard a struggle?" "Yes, like somebody striking the wall."

"That pillow on the divan was soaked in blood, so he had to be asleep on the divan when he was hit."

"While asleep on the divan? Where were they talking?"

"His head had to be on that pillow, and the inference is he was asleep when he was hit."

"I don't know. Couldn't he have gotten up? Don't jump at conclusions. Think of all the angles. When I saw him on the floor, I saw blood on the pillow."

"There is no reason to think he wasn't asleep."

"My husband didn't sleep well sometimes."

"He must have been hit when his head was on the pillow."

"The pillow was where?" "When I was in the room with Mrs. Winberg, the pillow was in the middle of the divan. The pillow had been moved."

"You noticed that."

"I noticed the pillow out of position. The first thing that caught my eye after the body was the tree, then the pillow. I thought it funny it had been moved."

"Was the light burning?" "I don't remember. It must have been to see so vividly."

"Don't you remember there was a comforter over the lamp?" "Over the light—no."

"The pictures will show it. So you didn't get much light."

"That is not a very dull light."

"You didn't think your husband dead at that time?" "No."

But you didn't go near to comfort him."

"I went—only he was all blood. It was so serious. I knew he had to have medical aid at once."

"But while waiting for medical aid, didn't you do anything, wet a cloth or something?

"I wet a cloth. But there was blood on the floor and I began to get sick. I thought I couldn't, I better get him to a hospital."

Did you touch him with the cloth?"

"Just the side of his face. I started to get sick."

"You didn't roll him over?" "No."

"What were you wearing?" "A blue nightgown and robe."

"You tried to clean the blood off?" "I wet the cloth first."

"Can you think of anything you haven't told us?" "I don't know who was in that house."

Dig Down, Hubbies!

Longer Skirts = New Outfit

By HAL BOYLE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24 (AP)—The ladies are in a dither. It isn't that prices are going up—it's that skirts are coming down.

The outbreak of a third world war would hardly stir such tumult in the feminine breast as has the news that, come fall, the style world has decreed longer dresses.

My wife has been in despair for weeks. I didn't know what the trouble was at first. After Frances had been moping for several days I said:

"I forget just what I did, but I know it was all my fault, and I apologize."

"You didn't do anything," she said; then added with wifely caution—"at least any more than usual."

"Then why are you going around looking like a moose at an Elks' convention?"

"Haven't you heard the news?" That is the way wives always answer a question by giving you one right back.

"You mean the Balkans, taxes or the Labor bill?" I asked.

"I mean the news about women's clothes," she said witheringly. "You call yourself a newspaperman! Don't you know skirts will reach to within eight inches of the ground?"

I said it was about time anyway for al ot of knobby knees to go back in hiding, and it might be worth while to pay the extra cover charge.

"You don't understand," said Frances. "It just means we shall have to throw away all our old dresses."

"Why," I said, waking to the real peril, "that will mean practically a new wardrobe for every woman in the country."

"Yes," said Frances complacently. "Isn't it terrible?"

Now I'm in a dither. And you will be, too, brother, come the days of falling leaves. It's only the dresses they are lowering on the ladies. It's the boom they're lowering on us.

Planes to Honor John Paul Jones

More than 40 planes will roar over Boston on Sunday, July 6, as part of the big celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of John Paul Jones, the great naval hero of the Revolutionary War.

Center of the observance on land will be at Charlestown Navy Yard and best vantage point of the air demonstration is expected to be for the visitors who gather there for additional features of the day's program.

Navy fliers from the Squantum airbase in Quincy as well as fliers from the air station at Quonset, R. I., are scheduled to take part in the huge demonstration.

At the yard, such vessels as the war-riddled U. S. S. New Mexico, the attack transports Fremont and New Kent, the dock landing ship Colonial, the troop transport Schmitt and many battle-scarred landing craft will be on exhibition as well as a number of more modern destroyers, so now that the war ended before they could take part.

Fires in 1946 Cost 561 Million

In a time when the nation is facing the worst housing shortage in history, enough timber and lumber is being burned up annually to build 200,000 five-room houses, Percy Bugbee, general manager of the National Fire Protection Ass'n declared today in an address at Hotel Statler.

Speaking before the National Ass'n of Building Owners and Managers, Bugbee said last year there were 60,000 fires with a property loss of $561,000,000. This loss, he declared, is 23 per cent higher than in 1945 and 83 per cent higher than the last prewar year.

Chile Mine Blast Kills 13; 2 Missing, 28 Badly Hurt

Circus Cancels New England Tour

YORK, Pa., June 24 (AP)—The big top won't be touring New England this year, James A. Haley, president of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Combined Shows, Inc., announced.

Asked whether cancellations was caused by inability to meet local and state safety regulations, Haley said there was no connection between the decision and the Hartford circus fire of 1944.

"The circus was seriously considering going to New England, but it wasn't definitely decided," Haley said, adding that "it isn't uncommon to change plans during the season."

Tentative New England stands cancelled by the announcement were: Fitchburg, Springfield, Worcester, New Bedford, Fall River, Portland, Manchester and Providence.

pieces were found. A—On the divan.

Clerk Olsson marked as Exhibit 38, three small fragments of glass found on the divan; Exhibit 29, one larger piece of glass found in the blood clot on the floor to the left of the body.

Q—How did the body lie? A—The body lay on the flat of the back with the head over to the left side, with the feet spread apart. The feet were apart six inches, the left arm was nine inches from the body, the right arm was 12 inches from the body, the forehead was a distance of about 13 inches to the right of the door frame that leads to the baby's room. The left foot was eight inches from the divan, the left shoulder, to the left of the body, was 14 inches away from the divan. There was a blood spot 14 inches fro mone side of the body and 12 inches fro mthe door frame.

Q—How large was that blood spot? A—It was irregular, 16 inches in diameter at the longest part of it.

Q—Did you observe the blood spots on the door of any room? A—Yes, on this door here—pointing—there were 24 blood spots on the lower part of the door.

Judge Forte—For clarity will you indicate where that door is.

Q—That is the door that leads into the baby's room—is that right? A—Yes.

Q—Did you observe the crib in the baby's room. With reference to the casters on it. A—I do not recall the casters—but Mrs. Cote said it didn't have any.

Townes—I object.

Judge Forte—The jury will disregard the last part of that answear.

Q—Then did you have a conversation with the defendant concerning those casters. A—Yes, I did.

Q—What did she say.

Townes—I object

Judge Forte—Why do you object? It is a conversation of an investigating officer with the defendant—it is a statement of the defendant.

Townes—Yes, I know, but he had as much chance to observe those casters as she had to tell him about them.

Judge Forte—But if he did not observe them it is perfectly permissable for him to ask her about them—you may answer the question.

A—Mrs. Cote said that the baby's crib had no casters on it. Wheatley—That is all.

Cross-Examination

Q—When you first talked with Mrs. Cote you told her to take nothing out of the house. A—Yes.

Q—Did she, to your knowledge. A—No.

Q—Did you and Lt. Sullivan say to her you were going over the house with a fine-tooth comb. A—I don't recall exactly.

Q—But you did go over the house. A—Yes.

Q—Is this the pillow slip and the pillow that you saw that morning. A—Yes.

Q—And you also took this quilt. A—Yes.

Q—Was there something on it. A—Yes, bloodstains.

Q—Did you go there before the photographer. A—I don't recall.

Q—When you say you saw the pillow and case, both were in the middle of the divan. A—They were in the center.

Q—And there were two others similar. A—Yes.

Q—When did you observe the divan. A—After I arrived there.

Q—What time was that? A—After 5 o'clock in the morning.

Witness was then shown pictures of the divan and he pointed out position of pillow.

Q—Some one to you knowledge moved the pillows? A—Yes.

Q—Is the hole in this faceel ohtin the same position as when you first saw it? A—It was about the same place.

Next witness was Lt. Joseph T. Walker of Longmeadow rd., Wellesley, state police chemist. He was questioned by Wheatley.

Q—Did you examine the spots on the divan cushion. A—I did.

Q—What did you find the spot was. A—Human blood.

Q—Now did you examine the quilt and certain spots on the quilt. A—I did.

Q—What did you find they were. A—Blood.

Q—Human blood. A—I did not test for human blod.

Q—Did you examine Exhibit 25, a pillowcase. What is this spot. A—Human blood.

Q—Did you examine the pillow marked Exhibit 26. A—I observed a spot which in my opinion was blood.

Q—I show you this toweling. Did you find evidence of blood. A—I found evidence of blood but not in large enough quantity to admit of complete testing.

Wright's Pond Dragged for Boy

Police and volunteers dragged Wright's pond, Medford, today for the body of Richard W. Scott, 16, of Clarendon st., Malden, one of the three drowned in New England waters.

Young Scott's clothing was found on the beach at the pond, and later three young girls told police they saw a boy go under while swimming far out in the pond. A search was started after the boy's stepfather, Leon Morse, reported he had not returned from a swimming trip.

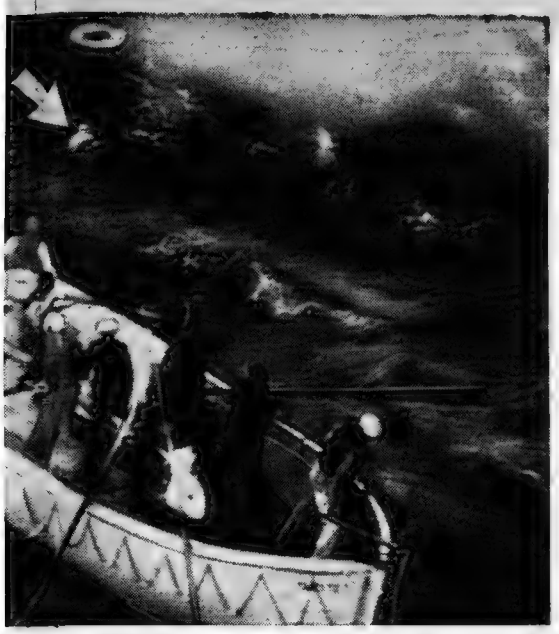
Another victim was John Totty, 8, of Union st., Cambridge, who slipped from an inflated inner tube and drowned at Charlesbank Beach, West End. His body was recovered three hours later.

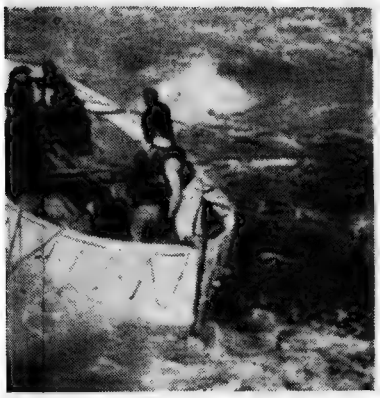
The third victim was drowned in the surf at Old Orchard Beach, Me. He was Peter Sacknoff, 10, of Portland, Me., who also was swimming with an inner tube.

Pays $500 Fine In Horse Bet Raid

Seized last Monday in a spectacular roof-top raid of a Hanover st., North End, building which police said was the headquarters of a horse play syndicate, Anthony P. Forte, 29, of Charter st., North End, pleaded guilty to registering bets today in municipal court and paid a $500 fine.

The raid, led by Capt. Thomas Casey and Sgt. Francis Gannon of the North End Station, was accomplished as police entered the rooms via the skylight to seize 7000 horse play slips, eight telephones and other equipment. Two other men arrested with Forte were released.





Resists

Carrying a fortune in cash and gems estimated at $150,000, Mrs. Lilly Turilazzi (above arrow) spurns life ring tossed to her from the liner Saturnia and attempts to swim away from a rescue boat. She leaped overbroad between the Azores and Gibralter, but finally (see left) was pulled into the lifeboat.

SHREWD, BOLD SWINDLE

NEARLY TWO YEARS have elapsed since the Hearst newspapers revealed that Soviet Russia was using American "invasion money" to promote its Bolshevization of Eastern Europe.

The fantastic story was disclosed by Mr. John W. Hanes, former under-secretary of the Treasury, who had discovered the facts while observing postwar problems abroad.

Mr. Hanes said that this country had "lent" to Soviet Russia the plates from which its own "occupation marks" were printed; that Russia, by issuing these marks in unlimited quantities through its army, was flooding the German economy with them, and that the ultimate costs were "shared" by Russia and the United States.

But Russia's "share" was only $60 a ton for paper.

And the United States was "obligated" to redeem the ENTIRE MASS of the invasion money at an exchange rate of TWENTY MARKS TO THE DOLLAR.

Now, at long last, three committees of the Senate have undertaken an investigation of the amazing occurrence, ascertaining that the actual cost to American taxpayers has been at least two hundred and fifty million dollars IN EXCESS OF FUNDS APPROPRIATED FOR SUCH REDEMPTIONS.

This has been—for Russia—one of the neatest swindles ever accomplished.

A large part of the cost of supporting Russia's occupation forces in Germany has been unloaded upon this country.

Furthermore, inasmuch as Russian Army pay was in arrears for two and three years when Germany was invaded, a substantial portion of the Russian war debt has been transferred to the United States by simply paying off the soldiers and officers in our Russian-printed occupation marks.

And at the same time the credit of our government has been utilized to carry on in Germany one of the Communist revolutionary techniques—that of inflating and destroying the currency of a country in order to "liquidate" its capitalists and middle class and establish a Bolshevik regime.

Exactly this procedure was one of Lenin's declared doctrines.

And exactly this procedure—debauching the currency—was used in Hungary last year when Russian inflation drove the pengo out of circulation as a prelude to wrecking the anti-Communist legal government of the small landholders' party and inflicting the coup d'etat that has driven Premier Ferenc Nagy into exile at Washington.

The Senate inquiry indicates that the Treasury Department and the State Department caused the American printing plates to be surrendered to Russia, at Soviet insistence, with the approval of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The purpose of the Senators is to compel a "currency reform" in Germany.

It should also be their purpose—and is undoubtedly their duty—TO FIND AND TO FIX COMPLETE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE DISGRACEFUL DONATION TO PREDATORY COMMUNISM WHICH WAS EVIDENTLY PERPETRATED AT AMERICAN EXPENSE.

VITALLY ESSENTIAL

THE RECESS STUDY of the Community Property Bill recommended by the Joint Committee on Legal Affairs should be promptly authorized by the Legislature.

Failure to authorize the recess study will be tantamount to compelling the people of Massachusetts to assume a needless and avoidable Federal tax burden of one hundred million dollars next year and every year after.

The Legislature should pay less attention to the imaginations and exaggerations of some local lawyers and MORE ATTENTION to the experienced opinions of bar associations in the Community Property States, every one of which has said that the Community Property Bill will be a veritable godsend to Massachusetts.

Fatal the wolves to trembling flocks,
To careless seamen hidden rocks
To blossoms fierce winds from above
To human quiet, love.
Oh, ye happy bachelors whose hearts are free
From love's imperial chain
Take warning and be taught by me
To avoid the enchanting pain.
If your bliss you prize
Fly from the siren with the misbehaving eyes.

"THE GIRLS I'VE MET." That would be a good title for a book by a Navy man or member of the merchant marine. Of course, he should write it while still a bachelor. A married man might have to leave out some of the most interesting girls. This comment is inspired by a merchant marine man telling me about a Hindu girl he met in Calcutta. This girl was continuously singing a little ditty in the Sanskrit tongue. As the lass spoke good English, he asked her to translate the song. She translated it as follows:

Just in the hush before dawn,
A little lovely wind is born,
A little chilly, errant breeze.
That thrills the grasses, stirs the trees.
And as it wanders on its way
While yet the night is cool and dark,
At the first carol of the lark
Its pensive murmur seems to say
"I wait the sorrows of the day."

The merchant marine man commented: "That's beautiful but if an American had written it the last line would read: 'I wait the happiness of the day'." The girl replied: "Ah, but you have the western mind, with the western outlook on life. While we Orientals find our greatest joy in sadness."

MOVING EAST — Quite a little moving picture production is being moved out of Hollywood these days. Is being said 30 per cent of the moving pictures will be made in New York and vicinity. So perhaps Fort Lee, N. J., Astoria, the Bronx and Flatbush will be film production centers again. Also New Rochelle where that great serial "The Million Dollar Mystery" was made. James Cruze was the male star of that masterpiece. I can't remember whether the heroine was Florence La Badie or Marguerite Snow.

ASIDES—Mrs. Gussie Steckler, widow of Supreme Court Justice Steckler, can now do the samba. Arthur Murray taught her how. What's unusual about that? Well, sir, Mrs. Steckler is 84 . . . There appears to be a lot of whisky bottle refilling going on in cocktail bars. The authorities unearth some of this skullduggery but, no doubt, many tricky tavern owners get away with it. I hope you have found a bar you can trust.

HOLDING A WIFE—An unusual number of ex-husbands seem to be carrying the torch for ex-wives. At times, it appears the wives are doing most of the walking out and leaving husbands nursing broken hearts. This is contrary to the general belief. Most people have the impression it is usually the wife who is cast aside. That accounts for the innumerable articles and books on the subject of how to hold a husband. The time seems propitious for some how-to-hold-a-wife advice. For example, somebody should write a book titled "Forty Ways to Amuse a Wife."

BOWLING—A San Francisco subscriber makes a unique claim. Says he believes his wife holds the record for the lowest regulation 10-pin bowling score of all time. Her score in a recent game was 13! And a Detroiter says: "Recently when in Los Angeles I saw a sign reading: 'The World's Largest Bowling Alleys—53 Alleys.' That's just another of those phony Los Angeles claims. The Great Lakes Bowling Alleys, in Detroit, has 60 alleys—all in a row!"

ASKING—Queries from clients. Q—Now that you have found out a centipede doesn't have 100 legs but never more than 40, let us know about the millepede. Has it 1000 legs? A—Can't say right now. But there is a millepede at the Bronx Zoo. Maybe I'll go up there some day and count its legs. And I mean maybe. Q—Come now, Eddie, get out on that limb. Who is going to win the National League pennant this year? A—St. Louis.

SAYS SHE—"At a dinner party last evening some of the men were squawking about the new long skirts the girls are wearing." writes a San Franciscan. "We, the girls present, challenged the men to get up and roll their pants above their knees. They accepted the challenge and then promptly admitted short pants made them look short, fat, thick in the middle and broad in the beam. These same men are now 100 per cent in favor of their wives and girl friends wearing long skirts. Short skirts don't show off legs they just ruin the figure."

"Young man, would you kindly see what is wrong with this telephone?"

FAIR ENOUGH

BUGSY SIEGEL, murdered in a revival of the quaint old machine-gun process of the Capone era, had become one of the most formidable criminals of the new underworld of Hollywood, New York, Miami and the grand circuit of summer and winter gambling resorts.

Westbrook Pegler

He was officially an aristocrat of this new underworld, being listed in the international, confidential blue-book and all the lesser directories of the FBI and the several agencies of the Treasury Department.

The Treasury took a special interest in him because the enforcement of the Narcotics Act is a responsibility of the Treasury, and Siegel had established a milk route, as he had his colleagues call it, by which drugs were delivered from sources in old Mexico to stations in the United States.

The principal port of entry was the California border, and Los Angeles and Hollywood were important points of distribution and sale.

The Musicians' Union, in its recent convention, adopted a resolution which is significant in this respect. The resolution would permit the expulsion from the union of any member who used, or carried on traffic in narcotics.

It was hastily explained that this was merely an affirmative gesture in favor of law and order and not directed at any special condition in the trade.

The truth is, unfortunately, that because so many of the really active members of the union are employed in resorts of the underworld and the twilight world of luxurious and expensive dives run by racketeers, but patronized by more or less respectable clients, they are brought very close to the narcotics trade.

SIEGEL'S LATEST and greatest venture was a gambling resort and hotel at Las Vegas, Nev. Billy Wilkerson, of Hollywood, the publisher of a moving picture trade paper and for years the operator of expensive restaurants patronized by the movie industry, started the resort, intending, he said, to run a restaurant, only.

Las Vegas is close to Hollywood and is heavily patronized by men and women who earn tremendous salaries in the movies, in radio and in the night clubs.

Wilkerson soon got an offer from Siegel but whether this offer was enforced by "muscle," Wilkerson was unwilling to say as long as Siegel lived.

At any rate, Wilkerson found that he had not only one partner, Siegel, but two others, one an old-time Philadelphia bootlegger of the Boo-Boo Hoff gang, the other a Westerner who had no official criminal record.

Wilkerson said the cost of the Las Vegas resort went to $5,000,000 and that the place was running behind because it was too lavish.

SIEGEL WAS bringing in some of the most expensive night club and radio talent to entertain his guests. Some of them dropped much of their pay at the gambling tables.

Wilkerson finally got out of the resort and his story was that he never suspected Siegel's character until J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI telephoned him and warned him that he was in bad company.

Del Webb, one of the owners of the New York Yankees, who got rich as a war construction contractor on Army projects in Arizona, was the building contractor and, as recently as last winter, found himself with a lien of $500,000 against the resort property.

He said at the time that if Siegel should default he would of course take over the place but would not try to operate the gambling house. Instead he would sell it and get his money out.

Now, apparently, he must make his decision.

GEORGE RAFT, the synthetic tough guy of the movies, boasted that he was an old friend of Siegel and appeared as a character witness for him in a trial in Los Angeles.

At the same time it was established that Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers was a member of the same social circle.

Durocher claims to have broken away from these people since Happy Chandler, the baseball commissioner, suspended him for a year.

THE TOWNSPEOPLE of Las Vegas organized last winter to try to drive out Siegel because he was organizing to take over political control of not only Las Vegas but the whole State of Nevada.

Siegel won the first round of the political fight a few months ago in a small election.

A few days ago a townsman said approximately this to him:

"Siegel, I understand it annoys you to be called 'Bugsy.' Well, Bugsy, one of these days someone is going to shoot you if that is what it takes to get you out of Las Vegas."

HOLLYWOOD, June 24—The most intriguing offer Jimmy Stewart has had in weeks is one from Darryl Zanuck, to play the reporter who solved the Majczek case in Chicago. Just before Jimmy took off for New York, where he pinch hits for Frank Fay in "Harvey" for the summer, he had a talk with Darryl about this "Call Northside 777," and it's practically set for him to go into the picture just as soon as he finishes with the stage play.

Perhaps I'd better recall to you that this is the story of the mother who scrubbed floors for 12 years to make enough money to prove her son's innocence.

Richard Conte plays the son, Leopoldine Konstantin the mother, and Lee Cobb the city editor. Otto Lang, who is producing the picture, has spent a lot of time with Director Henry Hathaway in Chicago getting the right locales, because the entire picture is going to be shot there.

I'VE NEVER HEARD more discussion over a lady than over Joan Caulfield. First she was the star of "A Night Has a Thousand Eyes"—then she wasn't—then she was, and now she isn't. Yep, I get it straight that Joan will not be in Johnny Farrow's picture because she is going to be in "The Long Gray Line," the West Point story which stars Alan Ladd.

This is really the authentic story of West Point and will be made in the East just as soon as Alan finishes "Whispering Smith." Remember I told you Mrs. Ladd is going with Alan.

SOMETHING is going on with David O. Selznick in New York. His whole staff—president, vice president and treasurer are in New York for a meeting. Maybe it's to discuss the $8,000,000 they have already taken in for "Duel in the Sun."

After David Wayne was signed by David Selznick, Selznick was so enthusiastic about him that he added Wayne to the cast of "Portrait of Jenny," which is once again going before the cameras.

Wayne is the actor who charms the leprechauns in "Finian's Rainbow." He's still in the play, so he's a busy man working before the cameras by day and on the stage by night. He comes out here in January.

GRETA GARBO's so changeable you never know from day to day what's in her mind. But now she's finally set on doing "The Life of George Sand" in France.

She'll make it with George Cukor, according to their plans—and there's a chance that Laurence Olivier will play opposite her, as well as produce the picture, with Cukor directing. I say "a chance," because he has "Ivanhoe" to do for RKO, and commitments for J. Arthur Rank. Could be that Garbo is going to do "George Sand" for Rank—never thought of that!

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Joan Crawford told Jack Warner she didn't care how small the part was she wanted to be in "The Patriot." It's such a wonderful play.

"It's so important now," Joan told Jack, "with Communism to the left and to the right of us, that I feel it would be inspiring to be a part of this drama which is 100 per cent patriotic. Even if I just walk on I want to be a part of the picture."

EVER SINCE Greer Garson made a success on the screen she's had one idea uppermost in her mind, and that is, the great desire to play Mrs. Siddons in the movies. Mrs. Siddons, as you know, was the first famous English actress, and greatly beloved in Greer's native England.

Greer Garson

Greer has studied and read all about Mrs. Siddons, and now she has written a story which I heard, through the grapevine, is really excellent—but then, Greer is the kind of girl who does whatever she does with authority.

WALTER SELTZER sent a cable from London with chit chat that sounded exactly like Hollywood. Quoth Walter:

"This part of the world is another Sunset Boulevard what with Marlene Dietrich, Rita Hayworth, Linda Darnell, Eleanor Parker, Willie Wyler either here or in Paris.

"'Oklahoma' and 'Annie Get Your Gun' are great London hits and last night Robert Donat opened in a revival of 'A Sleeping Clergyman.'

"All of us over here making 'So Evil My Love' attended the premiere of 'Voice of the Turtle' with Margaret Sullavan. I wouldn't be a press agent if I didn't add that Hal Wallis and Ray Milland just returned from Brussels and the American center world film festival and the Belgian fans are just as movie crazy as our own bobby soxers."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Tony Owen and Donna Reed returned from the East yesterday with Tony, Jr. He is a few weeks old and is their second adopted child, and he's as cute as he can be.

This is hard to believe. Charles Vidor has been assigned to a crime doctor picture at Columbia with a 12-day shooting schedule.

David Niven and Audrey Totter at a table for two at the Mayfair. Tyrone Power is having plans drawn for a small house for himself. That reminds me—Annabella's daughter, Annie, has gone to Paris to join her mother so it will be some time before there is a divorce.

Here's a laugh—one of Philip Reed's neighbors has a For Sale sign on his front lawn with these words, "This House for Sale in the Same Block that Phillip Reed, Movie Actor Lives."

Ernie Byfield, Jr., who has all his old man's wit and brilliance, has a writing job at MGM. I wouldn't be surprised to see him go far.

Minna Wallis is expected back from England on July 5.

Mrs. Jack Warner has said adieu to Hollywood for a few months while she visits her daughter Barbara who has been in school in Switzerland. Jack joins her later.

Paulette Goddard telephoned Ben Bogeaus and asked him to relay the message that she expected to kiss the mayor of Brussels for the good of the country. I could say a few words, but I won't.

Don Avalier, who was formerly at Lucey's and extremely popular with the Moom Pitcher gang, is now at Peggy Valery's talk of the town.

Twenty-five years ago, George O'Brien was the star of "The Iron Horse," which John Ford directed. A few days ago, George signed to work with John again in "The War Party."

Jimmy Gleason's daughter-in-law and grandson arrive from New York in two weeks to make their home with Jimmy in Hollywood.

The Greg Bautzer-Audrey Young romance is continuing to be hot, hot, hot. They were a twosome at Jack's-at-the-Beach tonight and acted happy, happy, happy.

That's All Today. See You Tomorrow.

These Days

IT IS NOT OFTEN that a reader of any current book is willing to say that he would order every man, woman and child to read the one he had just finished. Yet that is precisely how I feel about John T. Flynn's "The Epic of Freedom," published by Fireside Press.

I only got the book by accident, having seen no announcement or review of it. Started to read it in a taxicab and never quit until I reached the short sketch of the author at the end. I must admit that I envy Flynn his accomplishment of a book so simply written, so jammed with truth, so inspirational.

His is the story of American liberty. Fynn came by it in this manner:

"...I have been about our colleges a good deal in the last dozen years and I have taken occasion to inquire as to the state of American history in the curricula and the student body . . . Most of all I noted the neglect of the history of American ideas and traditions almost as if there were no such things save as more or less vulgar offshoots of European continental institutions."

Then he says:

"I have listened often to the curbstone revolutionist in Hyde Park or Union Square howling for the rise of some harsh proletarian dictatorship. I have wondered if he could be aware of the ages of suffering that had gone into the making of his right to that soapbox and the cop standing beside him to protect him while he plied his big mouth so loudly for knocking the constitutional props from under his box and the cop."

SO FLYNN SETS OUT to tell the story which he does in little over a hundred pages. And to make his orientation clear, he begins with these facts:

"Since the birth of Christ, some 200 billion people have lived upon this earth. If we will add up the number who at brief intervals in that time have enjoyed freedom in the sense we understand the word, we will find they do not number as many as one billion.

"In other words, in 2000 years not more than one-half of one per cent of the world's peoples have possessed freedom. Put differently, ninety-nine and one-half per cent of all the human beings who have peopled the earth in 2000 years have lived as the slaves or subjects of someone else."

That is the most important fact that faces the American people today. Freedom is at times confusing; it is nearly always inefficient. It produces great waste and often injustice. But it recognizes the dignity of man; it gives each human being the right to pursue his own course and his own conscience; it frees him from bondage to another man or to a group of men.

Human freedom has been achieved slowly, incompletely, by uncertain and at times frightening steps forward. As John T. Flynn says:

"...It was 1300 years since the Saxons landed at Kent. It was nearly 500 years since Edward I called his model parliament at Westminster." And even so, humanity was only on the threshold of human freedom—and the United States was not yet born a nation.

FREEDOM IS INFECTIOUS. After the American Constitution incorporated the most complete statement of the rights of man into the foundation of law, other countries followed our example within the limits of their traditions. Some peoples have been more fortunate than others in their experiments with freedom; some have failed utterly. We are now actually living in an era when there is a reversion, one might even say a revulsion from freedom. But as Flynn so pointedly clarifies our problem in his very last paragraph:

"We must never fail to see that to get some mythical security at the hands of the all-powerful State we are continually being asked, as the price, to give up one by one those great freedoms which have cost our fathers the sacrifice of so much life and blood the last 1500 years."

WASHINGTON, June 24—May I be turned into a pillar of salt water taffy if this isn't true: The Soviet embassy has become so suspicious it has cut speakeasy peepholes in its big front door so callers can be given a careful check-over before being admitted.

Frankly I didn't believe it myself until I went over to the embassy at 1125 16th st., N. W. . . . (telephone, National 7550, 7551 and 7552. Ask for Vyacheslev). And there they were—just like the peepholes Salvy Spitale had cut in his joint when he was expecting a visit from Dutch Schultz.

The sight brought back such poignant memories it was all I could do to refrain from pushing the buzzer and telling the peephole-keeper: "Joe sent me!"

JOE E. LEWIS panicked every horseplayer in the dump with this one:

A bookmaker dropped dead. The sad news was broken gently to his partner.

"Prepare yourself for a shock," said the bearer of ill tidings. "Poor Sam just passed away."

"That so?" said the partner. "What was the off time?"

I WAS TELLING YOU the other day about being in New York and getting into a reminiscence session with a couple of my old newspaper playmates, Hal Burton and Warren Hall. I inveigled both into putting their pet reminiscence on paper.

I printed Mr. Burton's contribution last week and I am still being employed so I am taking another chance. Today we present Mr. Warren Hall's epic—every word of which can be attested to by dozens of city room survivors. Ladies and Gentlemen, Mr. Hall:

Russ Symontowne was on the rewrite trick that started at 9 p. m. Nick was on the city desk. Sy came in with the grandpappy of all hangovers, and Nick was sore. Nick didn't get sore very often, but when he did somebody was due for trouble.

Nick called Johnny Martin at police headquarters and gave him whispered instructions. Then he called out:

"Hey, Sy, take a story from Martin. They found a Chinaman over at Mott and Pell with his hair parted by a butcher's cleaver. He belongs to some tong called Hop Suey Oolong. Let's have fifty words."

Meanwhile, Nick was busy in the wire room, giving instructions. Sy was hardly off the phone before Nick handed him a phoney wire datelined Chicago, to the effect that a couple of Hop Suey Oolongs had been hatcheted there and it looked like trouble. Nick gave the copy to Sy and said:

"That builds it up a little. Maybe you better make it a hundred words."

Of course, Sy hadn't gotten the first sentence of his story written when Nick gave him another fake bulletin datelined San Francisco reporting that a half dozen Hop Suey Oolongs had bitten the dust there and two or three Chew Chow Meins to boot. It was a real tong war, Nick said, and he wanted five hundred feet.

Sy was having trouble hitting the right keys and the sweat was rolling off that naked head of his and getting into his eyes, but this was a big story and he was going to give his all, hangover or no hangover. As fast as he got a lead written, Johnny Martin would be on the phone with a phoney batch of new yellow corpse.

All other work had long since been abandoned and everybody in the office was devoting himself wholeheartedly to Sy's crucifixion, either making phone calls in a muffled voice, composing new telegrams for the boys in the wire room to copy on official blanks, or just standing behind him in a wide, quiet and semi-circle, waiting for the coup de grace.

It was a good hour and a half before Nick relented. Then he gave the signal and a copyboy brought in the final sheet. It was dated San Francisco and said merely:

"Tell Sy to go catch a duck."

Sy read it and noticed for the first time that nobody else was working and the room was far too quiet for the handling of any big story. He turned around slowly. Everybody in the place was standing behind him, a few of them grinning but most, by this time, a little sympathetic.

He said just one word, which you wouldn't want to repeat. Maybe he's taken a drink since then, but he's a mighty sober man these days.

Summer Recipes Win Praise At Home Economists' Parley

By MARTHA LEE

(From the American Home Economics Ass'n Convention)

ST. LOUIS, June 24—The city is full of home economists this week. They're attending the convention of the American Home Economics Ass'n which is being held in the Municipal Auditorium for a general discussion of the latest news and views on all phases of homemaking.

The exhibits are outstanding—over 200 of them. They cover every conceivable interest of home economists—books, clothing, textiles, food, equipment, research, and household supplies. If we don't find our friends around these exhibits, we're sure to see them in the lecture halls. What a week! We've talked with ever so many people already — and we've come up with some wonderful ideas.

We stopped at the National Dairy Council booth to see the home economist, Alice Cooley—and with food uppermost in our minds—cold food in particular at that moment—we fell to discussing ice cream. both of us agreed that the smooth texture, coolness, and delicate flavor of ice cream and the tartness of fresh fruit or berries make a perfect blend for a warm weather dessert. Then out came one of Miss Cooley's favorite ice cream deserts. Won't you try it?

ICE CREAM with RASPBERRIES

1 pint red raspberries
About ½ cup strained honey, or to suit taste
1 qt. vanilla ice cream

Pick over raspberries to remove any soft ones; wash thoroughly by floating in a large pan of cold water; drain well. Pour honey over berries and let stand 30 to 60 minutes in a cool place. Serve part of the sweetened berries around the ice cream and the remainder in a berry bowl. Makes 6 servings.

In talking with Agnes Resor, home economist of the Cereal Institute, she commented on the fact that most women are summer clothes conscious, but many are not summer breakfast conscious. She said that few families would be seen wearing clothes that are out of fashion, but many eat breakfasts that are out of fashion. "Home economists, nutritional and medical authorities throughout the United States," she went on, "set up a basic breakfast pattern which is a minimum breakfast that everyone in this modern day should eat—that is, fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter. More of the foods in this pattern can be eaten, or meat or eggs may be added."

We really hadn't intended to go on a recipe-collecting tour while in St. Louis—but when these recipes were brought to our attention we felt they were well worth sharing with our readers at home.

CRUSTY FRUIT WHIRL

(From the Wheat Flour Institute)

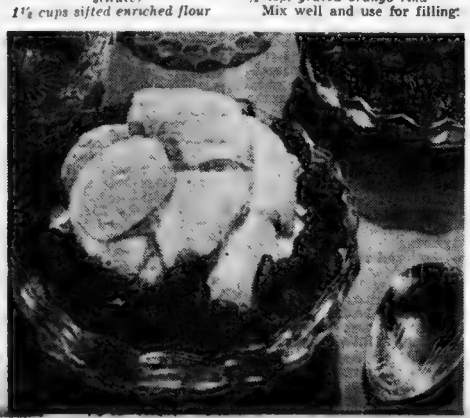
1⅓ cups sifted enriched flour
2¼ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 tsp. sugar
3 tbsp. shortening
6 tbsp. milk
1 egg beaten
½ cup orange sugar
2 cups sliced sweetened peaches
Strawberries
Lemon sauce

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to egg and add to flour mixture, stirring only until flour is moistened. Toss on lightly floured board and knead gently ½ minute. Roll out to rectangular sheet ¼-inch thick. Sprinkle with orange sugar. Roll up like jelly-roll and seal edge. Form into oval on greased baking sheet. With sharp knife or scissors, cut through roll almost to center in 1½-inch slices. Turn each slice slightly on its side. Bake in hot oven (425 deg. F.) about 15 minutes. Fill center with peaches. Garnish with strawberries. Serve with lemon sauce, if desired. Makes about 4 servings.

ORANGE SUGAR

¼ cup sugar
½ tsp. grated orange rind

Mix well and use for filling.



ICE CREAM WITH RASPBERRIES

First New Fall Hairdo

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Beauty and Fashion Editor

FROM ALL ADVANCE indications there'll be a change in the millinery silhouettes for fall . . . a radical change, interpreted in crowns. Several of the topflight milliners are now working on hats that will have as their distinguishing features round and puffy crowns . . . frequently with a small turned-down or cloche brim.

THERE'S HIGH intrigue in this new sidesweept updo . . . especially created for Warner filmstress Arlene Dahl . . . and an entirely new version of the old updo favorite. With fall millinery taking to high crowns . . . either rounded or puffy . . . updos will be the accepted mode of the new season. But . . . updos require beautifully coiffed hair . . . hair that is healthy.

Lily Daché's larger-crowned hat offers plenty of lift in crown and brim . . . Sally Victor's cloche puffs over its ripple-brim . . . Peg Fischer's bicorne blows up in a canoe-shape.

If hat crowns are going full, and away we go . . you can wager your last bob that hairdos will follow suit and go full, too. Already in Hollywood the glamor gals are taking to high intrigue in hairdos. We've pictured a side-swept hairdo created for Arlene Dahl by Helen Turpin, head hair stylist at Warner Studios.

STIMULATES THE SCALP

Before we describe how it may be achieved . . . let's pause a moment and reflect on the hair that is going to be swept into this or that, different-from-last-year's updo. It will be a softer version, with strategically placed ringlets dressing up the back hairline . . . and a side-swept pompadour not even remotely resembling the pompadours of the past. And women will pay more attention to the condition of their hair. They'll stimulate the scalp . . . reinvigorate it . . . with a hair ointment that promises to return health and glow to hair.

GIVES HAIR VIGOR

It contains a very special ingredient which in and of itself means strength and vigor . . . because it's been culled from nature to enhance human nature. Use this scalp strengthening, scalp invigorating, hair-beautifying ointment every other night. Massage it directly into the scalp. On alternate nights use a notable hair tonic that virtually forms a hair cap to protect the locks. And, finally once a week or every ten days . . . shampoo the hair with a pure liquid castile shampoo . . . all products of this very special hair firm.

Now for this pictured glamorous style: Part hair on right side and divide top hair into four sections. Roll the first two rows in standing curls toward face, and the back rows away from face. The sides are then rolled in soft curls, counter-clockwise, and the back hair rolled in diagonal curls, clockwise. In dressing the hair . . . comb the right side curls into flat waves . . . the ends forming curls at nape of neck. Next, comb back hair into waves and achieve side-pompadour by combing left side into upward waves over crepe hair. More crepe hair is used to form high waves in front . . . and turn ends into soft curls at peak of pompadour.

For the name of the hair and scalp re-invigorating ointment, phone the Beauty Dept. LIBerty 4000, daily except Sunday, or write to me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Slim Contour, Wide Drapery

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

SUCH IS a woman's whim that she is always demanding the impossible and getting it. She has got it again in a miracle of a dinner dress that combines clinging body lines with all the drama of sweeping drapery.

To achieve sweeping lines in a figure-molding dress seems like a contradiction in terms, but it has been done, and beautifully. Where women really want and need figure fit is through the waist and over the hips. The dramatic gowns that the foremost designers are showing in their collections now define the waist and hips with precision, then go all out in sleeves and skirts with the kind of flare that stars a dress with importance.

The black crepe dinner dress designed by Adrian and sketched today is a brilliant example of the dramatic after-dark dress. It is a shaped sheath over the hips and up to the bosom line. The full sleeves are one piece with the yoke and their fullness caught below the elbow to make a tight sleeve to the waist. A wide drapery of the material is side-pleated to the front of the dress, forming part of the skirt, and sweeps up across the back shoulder line.

Compliments Pay Dividends

You'll get a reputation for being "discerning" . . . "charming" too, and "socially accustomed" . . . if you cultivate the endearing habit of paying compliments. This doesn't mean being gushing, and it doesn't mean being insincere. But it does mean that you have a quick awareness to pleasant things, and that you take the trouble to mention these things. —MRS. BEECKMAN

Smart Contrast

FLAG BLUE contrasts stunningly with white for this New York dress in which a striped middy top accents an all-around pleated skirt. A two-piecer fashioned of rayon oxford cloth . . . it takes care adequately of the round-the-clock fashion necessity of the young careerist who must look pretty at her job and pretty special for her date.—R. Gardners to Live in Puerto Rico

GEORGE PEABODY GARDNER, JR., had so many former Harvard classmates and Navy friends for ushers at his wedding his parents were hard put to it to tell us the complete list during the excitement of pre-nuptial festivities.

Son of the socially prominent Mr. and Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, George took pretty and vivacious Tatania Stepanova as his bride in a lovely noon wedding at Trinity Church June 21.

French by birth and Russian by ancestry, the new Mrs. Gardner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Stepanoff who now live in New Jersey. She came to this country as a dancer in the Russian ballet. Escorted down the aisle by the groom's father, and given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore white tulle with a full skirt fashioned of deep flounces and a drop shoulder edged with narrow ruching. Her veil fell from a tiny crown of braided white satin. Her mother wore black net over flesh pink with sparkling jet sequins on the bodice.

MRS. GEORGE P. GARDNER JR.
Bride of Socialite

Rose Gardner was maid of honor in shirred white organdie with a halo of shaded blue larkspur to match her bouquet. The bridegroom's mother wore cream lace with brown accessories and a toast straw picture hat.

John Gardner was his brother's best man and the 15 ushers were another brother, Robert, Parmely W. Herrick, Robert B. Whitney, Eliot C. Bacon, Henry E. Russell, Oliver Iselin, Jr., Com. Arthur G. Esch, Gilbert M. Condon, Jr., Francis L. Coolidge, Charles A. Meyer, Peter Nicholas, Robert Hare, Burgess Fearon, Daniel Jones and George Aldrich.

The newlyweds will live in Puerto Rico. They were greeted by most of the Hub's socially prominent at the wedding breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, Sr., at Green Hill, their beautiful Brookline estate. Just a handful of them included Mr. and Mrs. Louis Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Constantin Pertzoff (Olga Monks), who were married at an elaborate Russian Orthodox ceremony here 10 years ago, Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman, Mr. George von L. Meyer with his daughter, Mrs. E. Calber Cheston, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Meyer, wife of an usher. Their cousins, Mrs. Robert Whitney and Mrs. William B. Bacon, the former Weld twins, Adelaide and Katharine, were also among the guests, in summery prints and perky little hats.

THE Ladies Committee of Hahnemann Hospital is having a busy time entertaining members of the American Institute of Homeopathy and the International Homeopathic Society in their first convention here in 12 years. Last night they sponsored an evening at the Pops and tomorrow there will be a tea at the hospital.

Mrs. Ray W. Spalding is president of the Ladies' Committee. The tea is in charge of Miss Priscilla Cornish, Mrs. Henry L. Houghton, Mrs. Gardner Walworth and Miss Grace Morgan. Pourers will be Mrs. Charles Haskell, Mrs. Dexter Nichols, Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Mrs. John J. Cornish, Mrs. Addison R. Pike, Mrs. Ralph Larson, Mrs. Gardner Walworth and Mrs. Louis B. Harding.

THEATER lovers in Wellesley and surrounding towns are pleased with news there will be a summer theater at Wellesley College, first in the country sponsored by a college. The five-week season opens July 15 and early subscribers include Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Knudsen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Roland S. Norwood, Mrs. Harold L. Perrin, Mrs. Dorothy Peterson, Mrs. Charles N. Taylor, Miss Margaret S. Tuttle and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Welch.

'Joan of Lorraine' Rich Stage Treat

By PEGGY DOYLE

Distinguishing their Boston Summer Theater opening with a notable Broadway production, John Huntington and Lee Falk last night presented Madge Evans in Maxwell Anderson's stimulating drama, "Joan of Lorraine," in New England Mutual Hall.

It was the first local presentation of the New York stage hit, in which Ingrid Bergman's luminous performance was hailed as one of the great portrayals of the late theater season or any other theater season.

To follow Bergman required courage for her Joan shone with the beauty, frankness, honesty and force that this brilliant and beautiful young actress can give a performance, plus a special radiance that arrested the most blase of playgoers.

Miss Evans, it can be reported, gives a sincere, forthright and touching portrayal, transforming a reluctantly approached assignment into a genuinely interesting evening in the theater. That this was the reaction of the first-night audience, generally was apparent from the concentrated absorption that marked it as a whole.

The playwright, through Joan, is saying that all men live by faith, despite themselves and the fact that articles of faith and creed cannot be verified. The actors, in this play-within-a-play, pause during a rehearsal of "Joan of Arc" to debate this question of faith that men live by.

There had been considerable doubt that summer-conditioned entertainment-seekers would be interested in the Anderson two-act drama, which has been billed by more than a few New England "strawhats" for some time during the summer. Last night's response cancelled out any doubts, indicates that it may be one of the most popular dramas to be presented this season.

Miss Evans has been surrounded by a most capable supporting cast, headed by William Mendrek, who is excellent in the widely divergent roles of director and inquisitor. Bruce Adams' Dauphin blends a pixyish humor with a royal vanity. And there are worthy performances by William Jeffrey and others too numerous to mention.

Falk's direction is competent, particularly in his reversal of the Broadway "business" which had Miss Bergman facing the audience in several scenes in which it was noted her face bore "a glow of inspiration." Miss Bergman is one of the rare actresses who could pass this crucial test.

EDMOND O'BRIEN and Ella Raines are teamed in an exciting murder-suspense story, "The Web," due on RKO Boston screen on Thursday.

ZACHARY SCOTT and Ann Sheridan, as a rifting married couple, in "The Unfaithful," which is to open Thursday at the Met Theater.

Ghost Film Held At Keith Memorial

Keith Memorial's delightful ghost story, "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," is remaining a second week.

The effective teaming of Rex Harrison, as the ghost, and Gene Tierney, as the notably photogenic, young Widow Muir, combined with R. A. Dick's provocative story add up to grand entertainment.

On the same bill is "Child of Divorce," with nine-year-old Sharyn Moffett, Regis Toomey and Madge Meredith.

Ah Me! or Lines To Boston's Old Baseball Shrine

By AUSTEN LAKE

THE AIR IS SWEET with summer's incense. The bold eye in the sky sends down its impetuous heat. The youthful greens of field and forest are in the season's full dress. June in New England is at its blue-and-gold best. Summer is the time to dream.

So I passed down Boylston st. this morning, past the old portico of the hotel where the broad steps spread like an old grandmother's apron and where, in years past, the visiting ball players used to sprawl between April and October, warming themselves like hens on the sunny side of a barn.

For nowadays the ball teams are scattered in the crystal and gilt of rival taverns and passersby no longer see the players mooning the morning hours away, motionless as bisque dolls and bending eyes glazed with boredom on the street traffic—names like Jacques Fournier, Heinie Groh, Grover Alexander, Walter Johnson, Eddie Plank, Frank Chance and a host of others, some dead, some venerable old codgers.

Fond Memories of Other Days

THERE IS SOMETHING which betokens the season, something that suggests rosemary and the odor of regret for the change which time has wrought in the old meeting place—something which suggests maiden hair fern, the social dignities of the Civil War, the cool and quiet fragrance of Aunt Sally's elderberry wine cellar.

For the ancient steps are curiously linked with Boston's baseball legend. Famed characters like John McGraw, Ty Cobb, Christy Mathewson and Kid Alberfeld used to lounge there. And through its twilighted hallways we of the press once walked on carpets thick as forest moss, as though down memory's little lane, to tap on Miller Huggins' door and find the little gnome in his worn blue dressing robe, smoking his two-quart calabash pipe and growling in his prosecuting attorney's voice. Ah me! Fond memories of other days.

In these modern times we on the news side meet the ball players by appointment. The secretarial chirp of some switchboard Argus demands to know your business with the celebrities. The casual freemasonry of other years is gone.

But in that elder time you took the bird cage elevator and rumbled up with rheumatic creaks to waken Babe Ruth or George Sisler or Lou Gehrig, who climbed out of their mahogany sleigh-beds and twisted a one-pound key in a keyhole made for full vision pecking. Ah me! Such things are stored in the attic of the past along with grandma's bustle and Uncle Bud's old army musket.

Most of all I remember the quiet mornings spent with Connie Mack in surroundings of Hepplewhite and Chippendale which so befitted his Old Testament character. For, during his first 37 years of coming to Boston, Connie occupied the same corner suite looking down on the nave of Trinity Church and the old world angles of St. James st. Gray and grave Connie would sit like male versions of Whistler's portrait of his mother, talking in baritone whispers and seeming misplaced in the go-get-'em bustle of the baseball business.

The Alabaster Girl

THE LIFE SIZE ALABASTER statue of a girl who hugged a night gown about her classic figure and grinned coyly at the lobby sitters is gone from the newel of the staircase. Her matronly curves no longer fit the streamlines of modern decor and she has been sent to the basement. But time was when John McGraw used to take his midnight stance beneath her pedestal and count his Giants into their cells, ticking off potential inebriates and exalted baseball knockers who, during his lifetime, turned him gradually gray. Ah, me!

It was in the hollow of those stairs that old John had stood the night that Hugh McQuillan, the night blooming pitcher, rode up two flights and took the freight elevator to the rear ash exit. It was a starlit night as he paused to gulp the air of freedom and say, "Boy, wotta night," before shoving off to some downtown hot spot.

And history says, as he paused, another voice, the throaty growl of John McGraw had agreed, "Yes, a lovely night! Makes one think of a canoe, a pretty girl and soft guitar music . . ."

"Look at that moon" old John invited with a sigh . . . "and take a good look because it's costing you fifty dollars." Ah, yes! The alabaster girl is gone below stairs and old John sleeps under a grassy mound and the moon looks in vain for Hugh McQuillan.

And those horsehair settees where Ty Cobb's nasal snarl used to voice threats against some Red Sox, "Ah'll cahve's black heart out." They, too, are victims to modern frill. Brocaded cushions replace the deep leather upholstery where Lefty Grove used to stick his black cigars. The high and bright brass goboons with their wide-belled bugle tops—targets for the marksmanship of Dazzy Vance—are gone too. The potted palms, the wicker porch chairs, the grandfather's clock, the cubbyhole cigar stand. All are gone with the leaves of yesteryear. Where now is that ancient fellowship? Ah, me!

Tigers See Yanks Ahead By 10 Games in August

By HERB FINNEGAN

Champions of the entire universe in '45, runner-up to the American League champion Red Sox in '46, Detroit's Tigers, now in fifth place, will be shooting for their 11th straight defeat when they take on the Red Sox at Fenway tonight.

"We broke the major league record," they shouted in glee as Denny Galehouse beat 'em in the Ladies' game at Fenway. "The Cards held it at nine straight; now we got it all to ourselves."

They whooped and danced and chortled, "Beat Buffalo" was their chant.

That has become their new slogan. Having slipped from first place to fifth in little over a week, having seen their great pitching collapse as well as their hitting, they evidently have given up hope of whipping major league rivals, and now are training their sights on their triple-A farm club in an exhibition game scheduled in Buffalo Thursday.

"Beat Buffalo," "Beat Buffalo," "Beat Buffalo."

So have the mighty fallen.

They'll send their ace Hal Newhouser against rookie Mel Parnell tonight and though Parnell beat Newhouser with a four-hitter on the Sox first trip west, the Detroit southpaw, who has a 6-8 record, should beat the Sox. He's too good to be beaten consistently, and he's lost his last two games.

"We can lose behind him, too," said the Tigers, quite pleased at setting a new major league record. "We lost behind him in Washington and in New York. We can lose behind him here tonight because even if he does pitch as well as he did in Washington, one of us is sure to kick the game away for him.

"Did you notice Kell give the Sox two runs with his wild throw? He's our best ball player, but he's finally caught the spirit. But we do think we have a chance to beat Buffalo."

Washington hit only three balls out of the infield against Newhouser but Masterson beat him 1-0. Yanks' rookie Frank Shea took a 5-3 decision from him in his last start. So the southpaw who was the league's MVP in '44 and '45 is just another guy named Hal this season—like Ferriss and Hughson and several other established headliners.

It's hard to win if your club isn't hitting, and the Tigers aren't hitting. Evers was benched in favor of old Doc Cramer in New York. Lake is under .200, Mayo and Cullenbine and Wagner around that mark. Mullin has faded to .290 and of course they miss injured Dick Wakefield. They miss, too, old Hankus Greenberg who batted in 127 runs last year.

Their pitching was supposed to hold them up but it has let them down terribly in the past 10 days. Hutchinson has a sore shoulder. Trucks, Galehouse's victim, lasted less than three innings. His record is now 3-6. Yanks' Berra hits a grand slam homer off Benton. Trout, pitching well, threw his own game away against the Yanks with an errant heave to third.

They can't get a break and they can't make one. They realize they're not going to win the pennant.

"But neither are you," they said of the Red Sox. "The Yanks will be eight or 10 games ahead of you by Aug. 15. We'll bet you on that. They're a better club, have more balance, and they're fighting.

"Why, we used to murder the Yanks last year," they continued. "We won the pennant for you by so doing. We're not licking them this year (dropped six of their last seven to the pace-setters) and you're going to suffer as a result.

"I notice you're not doing so well against them yourselves." (Yanks swept four-game series from Sox in New York).

There's a challenge to the Red Sox. Let's see what they make of it.

Harris Seen Lost to Sox for Season

Don Gutteridge was spiked by Birdie Tebbetts on the first play of the Ladies' Day (mixup on fly) and may be unable to answer the bell tonight. Wonder if Eddie Pellagrini will get a break . . . Denny Galehouse gave the Tigers only six hits, walked only one as he whipped them 8-2, but said his control was off. "Behind too many batters," he said frankly. There is a reason. Browns had him in the bull pen the past several weeks, and he didn't get much work. "First complete game I've pitched this year," he said honestly, "though I did go eight against the Yanks April 30. I got credit for the victory in that game, the only decision I had before this" . . . "He had better stuff than he had when we faced him on opening day," said the Tigers' George Kell, who hit the ball out of the infield only once. Galehouse looks as dependable as any pitcher on the Sox staff, though he never was better than .500 in his major league career. He's a stickler for condition, and Cronin was fortunate in picking him up. He'll be invaluable to the Sox now that it seems Mickey Harris is lost to the club for the season. Harris was in Baltimore today, visiting Johns Hopkins Hospital for treatment of his ailing flipper.

More ladies (10,000) failed to gain admission to the park than got inside (9813), so hereafter when and if the Sox have ladies' days tickets will be sold in advance. "To prevent injury," said the Sox. At one time the Monday line extended as far as Kenmore sq. Again, it went around Jersey to Lansdowne and ran all the way to the bleacher entrance in center field. Most of the ladies, it seemed, had children along, so there was danger of injury. Several major league cities have abandoned ladies' day games altogether as a result . . . Remarkable to behold: Paid attendance at the Monday game was 20,652. Detroit's always a good drawing card here but it had lost nine in a row and didn't figure to draw that well. There'll be another sell-out tonight as usual.

Roommates Tebbetts and Gutteridge between them got five of the Sox 12 hits and today were sporting identical averages—.180 . . . Pesky had three RBI for the day and but for a nice clutch by Mayo would have had five. RBI's don't come his way often but he's had five in the past two days. His total for the season is 13 . . . Williams had two solid bingles and two RBI, and once again he's above the .290 mark . . . Pat Mullin had gone hitless in 21 AB's before singling in the Yanks series . . . Galehouse had given up 42 hits in 32 innings before joining the Sox, and Muddy Ruel had soured on him. Muddy is considered the best judge of pitchers in the league, but Denny may fool him because the Sox should get him more runs than the Browns . . . Denny bounced a single off the fence in the sixth and was as happy as if he had just beaten Mort Cooper in the World Series as he did in '44. "First time I ever hit the wall," he shouted, and he spent two full seasons here before the war.

DiMaggio was hitless in four trips but the ladies were glad to see him. They applauded him wildly every time he came to the plate . . . Galehouse has plenty of friends in the press coop. He's one pitcher who can finish a game in less than two hours . . . Bob Swift has displayed Hal Wagner as Detroit's No. 1 catcher. He's hitting .300, Wagner, .210.

First Round of Hearst Junior Golf Tourney Opens Monday

The Pawtucket Golf Club and the South Shore Country Club—two of the more famous New England golf courses—will be the scene of the first two qualifying rounds of the Hearst New England Junior Golf Championships.

Medal play will begin at Pawtucket on Monday and at South Shore on Wednesday.

Other qualifying rounds will be played at Merrimack Valley, Lawrence, on Monday, July 7 and at Wachusetts C. C., West Boylston, Mass., on Friday, July 11. The final round play for the Hearst N. E. title will be held at Woodland C. C., Newton, beginning on Monday, July 21.

None of the rounds in the Hearst tournament will interfere with the New England Junior tournament which will be held at Worcester on July 15, 16, and 17. However USGA rules will prevail.

This Hearst tournament is open to all juniors and caddies who have not yet reached their 19th birthday. This age limit is two years lower than it was last year.

The reduction in the age qualifications will insure more even play.

Everett Taylor sends word from Pawtucket that the course there is in top shape. The Hearst golfers will find a welcome haven at the Rhode Island club.

President George A. Dunning at South Shore is pleased that Round No. 2 of the Hearst Tourney will be played at his club in Hingham. Pro Nick Gianferante, Vice-President Tom Hannaford and Manager Ken Perry will all aid in the Hearst round at South Shore.

The grand prize for the two finalists in the N. E. round will be a two-week trip to Los Angeles, California, for the Hearst National Junior title rounds.

The golfers will stay at the best L. A. hotels, will visit the film capital, and will play with the best of the pro's and movie golfers.

Clip the coupon from these sport pages today and mail it in to the Hearst Junior Golf Editor, Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Sons of Pros In PGA Final

DETROIT, June 24 (AP)—Jim Ferrier, Australian born, and Melvin (Chick) Harbert rode decisive semi-final victories into the 36-hole finals of the week-long National PGA golf championship here today.

Ferrier, deadly with his iron shots and requiring only 41 putts for the 27 holes, swept into the championship round with a record-equalling 10 and 9 semi-final victory over Art Bell, in 99 strokes, nine shots under par.

Harbert, getting amazing distances off the tees, was five under par while eliminating Vic Ghezzi of Kansas City, Kan., the 1941 PGA titlist, 6 and 5.

Ferrier, now playing out of San Francisco, and Harbert, whose home club at Northville, Mich., is just nine miles from the Plum Hollow Golf Club where this tournament is being staged, are both 32-year-old sons of golf pros.

Both made their National PGA tournament debuts a year ago at Portland, Ore.

Ferrier was out front all the way in handing his unmerciful semi-final shellacking to Bell, who didn't need any alibis for playing the 27 holes one stroke over par.

Harbert, whose constant grin and sizzling drives established him as the gallery's "darling" at the outset of the tournament, lost the first hole to Ghezzi but quickly got it back and never lost the lead.

Swim Lessons For N. E. Children

The Hearst "Learn to Swim" program gets underway in most sections of the U. S. Monday. No section will have more concentrated activity, however, than that planned for New England by the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser, the Red Cross, the Humane Society, and the Mass. Youth Commission.

Joe Baldwin, famous Red Cross instructor, will begin his classes at the Beachmont Club, Revere, at 10 a. m., Monday. Joe will hold beginner's classes until noon. Then in the afternoon, from 2 to 4, there will be classes in life saving. Joe will continue to work at Revere until Thursday July 12.

On the same dates, June 30 to July 12, Johnnie Temple, a Humane Society Instructor, will hold classes at the State Bath House, Canton, Mass. Johnnie will follow a similar schedule. Beginners from 10 to noon; lifesaving from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m.

There is no fee. Other dates will be announced in these papers next week.

Tricky Greens Kite Mass. Open Scores

A fugitive from a Dr. Kildare movie, 38-year-old New Jersey professional Gene Kunes, who has been operated on several times in the past two years, was the man 59 other top-flight golfers were attempting to catch today as the Massachusetts Open Golf Championship went into its second and concluding day.

The slender, drawling Englewood pro, who suffers from a mysterious stomach malady which the medics have thus far been unable to cure, laced out a superb 139 for the 36 qualifying holes to take a two-stroke lead over his nearest competitor, rhythmic Harry Nettlebladt of Avon, Ct. Kunes was three under par for the day.

The tricky greens at Belmont Country Club, site of this year's tourney had the competitors weeping, wailing and gnashing their midirons, with the new British amateur champion, Willie Turnesa, chief victim.

Noted for his wizardry on the greens, the former Holy Cross College ace three-putted three holes in succession during the qualifying round to wind up the day with a 151 total, qualifying easily but 12 strokes off Kunes' pace. Turnesa once went a whole season without three-putting a green.

Such local favorites as Ted Bishop, National Amateur champion; The Country Club's Bobby Knowles and Ted Adams of Quincy are still very much in the running. The two Teds each fired a 146, with Knowles two strokes higher.

Among the pros, Les Kennedy, formerly of Fresh Pond, Cambridge, and Tom Mahan of United Shoe, are in a position to take the tournament. Both used 147 strokes over the 36-hole route.

Kramer in Third Round

WIMBLEDON, June 24 (AP)—Top-seeded Jack Kramer of Los Angeles, coasted into the third round of the Wimbledon tennis championships with an easy 6—2, 6—2, 6—2 triumph today over Czeslaw Spychala of Poland in a second round men's singles match.

In the opening round of the women's singles, Mrs. Jean Bostock and Mrs. Kay Stammers Menzies, Britain's only two seeded player, came through handily. Mrs. Bostock defeated Miss S. Kormoczy of Hungary, 6—4, 6—3, and Mrs. Menzies downed Mrs. M. V. Neilson of Denmark, 6—2, 6—1.

Earlier in the men's singles, fourth seeded Dinny Pails turned in a trimph over 26-year-old Jan Etaubo of Norway, 6—2, 6—1, 6—1, under a broiling sun.

Pails' service, which breaks like a pitcher's curve, was erratic in the first set and Staubo annexed both games against service.

Almost simultaneously Torsten Johannson, member of the Swedish Davis Cup team who ousted Pierre Geelhand of Belgium, 6-0, 6-0, 6-0, yesterday, beat B. Royds of Britain by the same score.

Czechoslovakia's Jaroslav Drobny, seeded six, took an hour to clean up India's J. Mehta, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

Tom Brown of San Francisco crashed through to the third round by eliminating Frenchman C. H. Grandet, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

In the morning Brown had gone to anottsr tennis club with Jack Kramer and practiced.

"Then I took some salt tablets," Tom said, "and I feel much better than yesterday when I was darned tired."

Riggs, Budge Wrest Net Crown From Perry, Kovacs

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., June 24 (AP)—Bobby Riggs of Ferndale, N. Y., and Donald Budge of Oakland, Cal, finalists in the singles competition, are the new doubles champions of the National Professional Tennis League.

Riggs, who outlasted Budge in Sunday's singles finals to retain his title, teamed with Budge yesterday to wrest the doubles crown from Frank Kovacs and Fred Perry in four hard-fought sets, winning 7—5, 9—7, 4—6, 11—9. The victorious combination, playing together for the first time since 1942, were second-seeded.

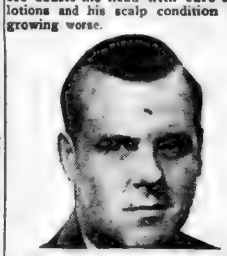
JOHN WARNER SAYS:
"TAKE CARE OF YOUR HAIR" 27

This young man has a fine head of hair and he doesn't give it any attention. Yet, his scalp is laden with dandruff, itches constantly and he loses a great deal of hair each day. Right now, a short period of the pleasant, low-cost scientific treatment used by John E. Warner and Associates would rid his scalp of dandruff, check the hair-fall and normalize his scalp.

A year later the hair has receded at the temples and our young man is worrying about it. He douses his head with cure-all lotions and his scalp condition is growing worse.



Three years later, it is too late to have a good head of hair but not too late to improve the appearance of the hair that remains through prompt treatment by John E. Warner and Associates.

Four years later, it is too late, his appearance is permanently marred, a serious handicap. Take care of your hair while you have it.

There is no charge for consultation or examination. Fees for treatment are moderate and are payable as the treatments are taken—not in advance. There is a separate department for women.

Angling At Peak

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Favored by the first two-day period of fair weather in many moons, angling activities rolled into high gear during the week-end, with numerous sportsmen trying their luck at various salt water rendezvous. Scores of boats were in the waters off Plum Island Point, where the initial mackerel of the season was taken Sunday, indicating that this species are on the move. Cod, pollock, and haddock were also hooked at this spot.

Al Kezar, Plum Island boatman and commercial fisherman, who was high line with tuna last year, nailed two of the big bluefins this weekend. They were scaled at 465 and 500 pounds respectively . . . Captains Mal and Fred Hudson are operating at their familiar stations, with boats and bait available for all.

"Bunny" Fernald has 14 dories at his place near Route 1A bridge, at the Parker river, Newburyport. Chatting with him, we learned that few stripers have been caught to date in the river, although there are plenty of the bass in this stream. A 28-pounder was gaffed by Iver Schartfenberg of Lynn, recently, while trolling.

At Buzzards Bay, Emanuel Silvia, Taunton, reeled in a 13-pound tautog from the Canal. Not many bass were taken there, however, but there are large numbers of squid and other bait . . . Schools of small stripers are ranging through Buttermilk Bay.

At Tripp has 60 dories in the water off Manomet Point, and anglers have been connecting with mackerel, cod, and pollock. This week-end was a busy one, thanks to the sunny skies.

According to Sarge Sargent, operator of the Goose Hummock Shop, at Orleans, the bass have gone inside Nauset Inlet and Pleasant Bay — and they're still difficult to hook . . . Whit Scott, local expert, landed a 17-pounder with a fly rod . . . Casting from boats with surface popping plugs has been the best bet in the waters at Brewster, Eastham, and Wellfleet. Henry Howland, of the latter town, caught 14 fish, trolling eelskins, off Sunken Meadow and Duck Harbor.

ANGLING ANGLES: Irate Anglers, seeking sport in nearby Quincy Bay, have been "on our ear" again, reporting that those commercial boats have been using hook trawls in the ship channels near Peddock's Island and Portuguese Cove.

Assault Entered in $50,000 'Cap

By DAVE WILSON

NARRAGANSETT PARK, June 24—The King Ranch Stable's Assault, the world's largest money winning thoroughbred, is included among the 40 nominations for the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap, New England's richest horse race scheduled for July 30 at Suffolk Downs.

The demand for stall space at the approaching Lincoln Downs meeting already exceeds the supply, and some of the surplus horses will be stabled at nearby Pascoag.

Fernando Fernandez, the gay caballero from down May-he-co way, has been engaged to pilot Adonis in Saturday's running of the $10,000 Roger Williams Handicap at 'Gansett.

Starting fields at Lincoln Downs will be limited to 12 horses, although the track is wide enough to accommodate more thoroughbreds . . . The backstretch at Lincoln has been purposely raised to afford fans a better view of races.

Odie Clelland reports that both Nimole Tiger and Tiotwo are suffering from bucked shins.

Going into yesterday's racing, apprentice Ray Petrin was showing the way with 17 winners, just four more than the total by Fernando Fernandez who has proved the sensation of the past two weeks' racing at 'Gansett.

Pat Horgan, who served as racing secretary at 'Gansett during the late Walter O'Hara's regime, is writing short stories on his farm near Rehoboth, Mass.

Johnny Huggins, who won last Saturday's $10,000 Blackstone Valley Handicap, rode his first winner under lights at Portland Meadows, Oregon on last September 4.

Son of Tarra, surprise winner of last Saturday, ran off four miles the morning before the day of his race, and led Stable Agent Phil Mecklenberg on a merry chase that included practically every nook and corner of the vast 'Gansett racing establishment.

New York tracks recently gave the heave-ho to more than 800 bookmakers which accounts for the drop-off in mutuel "handles" in that sector.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Genter of Minneapolis, who have some thoroughbreds in the care of Melvin (Sunshine) Calvert, arrived in Providence yesterday to witness the final two weeks' racing at 'Gansett . . . Trainers report a coughing epidemic at 'Gansett . . Not including yesterday, Bill Denham was showing the way to 'Gansett trainers with six victories.

Boudreau, Slaughter Top Hitters

NEW YORK, June 24 (AP)—Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians, who broke a first-place tie with New York's Joe DiMaggio last week, continued to pace the American League batters today with a mark of .343 while Enos (Country) Slaughter of the St. Louis Cardinals stayed in front of Philadelphia's Harry Walker by one point in the National League batting race, .343 to .342.

Boudreau, A. L. champion in 1944, collected six hits in 21 times at bat during the past week and fell from .350, but George McQuinn of the Yankees, his closest competitor, dropped even more, from .318 to .333, to tie with Detroit's George Kell for the runner-up spot.

Slaughter, who a week ago led Walker by three points, lost 16 points but managed to stay on top. Bert Haas, the handyman of the Cincinnati Reds, upped his average to .336 despite his switch from first base to the outfield and rose to third place. Bob Elliott of Boston was fourth with .328, followed by Brooklyn's Carl Furillo, .325.

McCormick's Bat Silences Critics

By BILL GRIMES

ST. LOUIS, June 23—During the first month he was with the Braves, Frank McCormick was used exclusively as a pinchhitter. He delivered the goods only twice in nine tries.

For years McCormick was to the Reds what Bob Elliott is to the Braves—the man who came through when the ducks were on the pond. Last year he hit .285 for the Phillies and batted in 66 runs. For him, that was a poor season.

When McCormick became a Brave, Earl Torgeson was the talk of baseball. Without exception, Southworth's boys knew that Frank was one of the best paid players in the National League. With "Torgey" burning up the league, a few of the low-salaried Braves didn't take kindly to their new teammate.

Outwardly, they gave McCormick a pleasant greeting. Inwardly, many of them saw red. At least four of the regulars made comments to the effect that they'd swap their contracts for one-half of McCormick's.

"What's McCormick going to do with us?" asked one.

"He's going to be used, so I understand it, as a pinch hitter," replied one. "He will be insurance for 'Torgey'."

What's the matter with Torgey?" asked another.

"Nothing, right now, but he might get hurt, or even go into a slump. The best of them have and still do," was the answer.

"Ya, well, it looks to me like we've acquired a $18,500 pinch hitter," was the conclusion.

Since he has been getting more or less steady employment at first base, McCormick has put an end to the whispering campaign. On this jaunt, he has shown to far better advantage than at least two regulars who would have put themselves in the "doghouse" for voicing opinions on the McCormick episode.

Possibly, Frank is not alert around the sack as he was a few years ago, but he's still a dangerous man at the plate. He has not lost any of his power and is respected by the best National League pitchers. They realize he can hurt plenty at the plate. McCormick demonstrated that fact last Sunday in Chicago after Elliott had hit for the circuit in the ninth. He unloaded on the first ball thrown him by Emil Kush and parked it high in the left center field bleachers for a game-tying homer.

Today the Braves are pro-McCormick, for big Frank has made valuable contributions to the club's cause. He has definitely played a major role in the drive to first place.

Spahn vs. Brazle Tonight; Umpires Get Barrett's Goat

ST. LOUIS, June 23—It will be Warren Spahn vs. Al Brazle tonight in the final game of the short Braves-Cards' series. Spahn stopped the champs here on the first trip, lost a tough one at home. The Tribe beat Brazle at home.

Tommy Holmes dropped George Munger for the count in the first inning of last night's game with a line drive but was thrown out. After bench repairs, Munger returned to the mound and beat the Braves, 6-2.

Coach Ernie White made his first miscue at first base when he neglected to warn Johnny Hopp to get back on the bag in the opening frame. After singling to right, Hopp made the turn. Ron Northey rifled the ball to catcher Joe Garagiola, who followed Hopp down to the sack, for the putout.

The "Shock Troops" will make their first appearance in a week tonight. It will be the first time Mgr. Eddie Dyer and his Cards have faced this shift in its entirety. It gives the Braves a flock of right handed batters.

The Braves split up after tonight's game. Mgr. Southworth and the main body will go to Ft. Wayne, Ind., for a twilight game tomorrow against the General Electric Co. Red Barrett will take Bill Voiselle, John Sain, Tommy Holmes, Phil Masi, Bama Rowell, Frank McCormick and Spahn straight through to New York . . . Ray Sanders, the Braves' first sacker a year ago until he broke his arm as a result of a collision with Erv Dusak here at Sportsman's Park, visited with his old mates last night. He looked very well and no longer carries his arm in a sling.

Catcher Hank Cameilli crashed the lineup last night for the first time since he had that big day in Pittsburgh a week ago Sunday . . . Since the Braves were here a month ago, Stan Musial has "upped" his batting average 100 per cent and the Cards have moved from last place to within reach of the first division . . . Between the threatening weather and streetcar and bus strike the box office took a licking . . . When Barrett allows himself to get riled because umpires do not call them as he (Barrett) thinks they should, he loses his effectiveness.

Bob Elliott ended Terry Moore's streak in the fifth. The Cards' captain had reached first 11 straight times, on nine hits and two walks. On his 12th time up, Terry lined one towards the left corner but Elliott leaping high speared the ball with his gloved hands.

Nashua Diamond Stars Compete for N. E. Spot

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

Bob Murray, athletic director for the American Legion teams in the Nashua area and formerly head coach at Nashua High, will be an important figure in the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser sandlot baseball tournament which will be staged at Holman Stadium, Nashua, on Thursday afternoon at 1 p. m.

Bob has been a top baseball man for many years. Fred Dobens, president of the Nashua Dodgers, tells us that Bob was a top second baseman for St. Paul in "Triple A" ball a number of years ago.

Murray will work with some of the best baseball men in the area to select the two best baseball prospects for the Hearst New England Sandlot final at Fenway Park, July 29.

Other members of the Nashua board are: Claude Davidson, president of the New England League; Fred Dobens, president of the Nashua Dodgers; Alden Clarke, business manager of the Dodgers; Buzz Harvey, famous Nashua High coach; Bob Vickery, manager of the Dodgers; Del Bissonette, manager of the Portland Pilots; William Sweeney, director of recreation for Nashua and Joe Sullivan, former N. H. U. star.

The two winners from the Nashua tryouts will compete with 26 other New England ball players in the N. E. final which will be played as a co-feature with a Red Sox-Cleveland Indians game. Joe Cronin will manage one sandlot team. Lou Boudreau will manage the other.

Rabbit Maranville sends word from New York city that eliminations are well on their way in that city for the All-New York team which will oppose the All-Hearst team in the National sandlot finals.

This Hearst tournament is absolutely free. There are no entry blanks to fill out or no entry fees to pay.

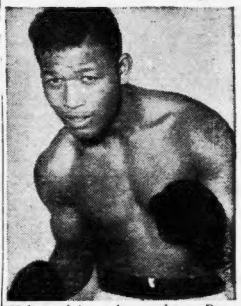
Welter Title "Go" On WCOP and WLAW Tonight



Welterweight champion Ray "Sugar" Robinson (above) tonight for the first time defends his title at Cleveland Arena, Cleveland, Ohio. Hoping to ascend the throne is Jimmy Doyle, classy Californian.

Robinson won his crown by defeating Tommy Bell in New York last December. Since then the "Sugar" has confined his ring activities to overweight contests. Ray is as elusive as a phantom and hits like chained lightning.

Meeting Doyle, however, may prove tough for the champ. Jimmy possesses plenty of courage and a good left jab. His extraordinary skill at picking off punches in mid-air, his feinting, make it hard for an opponent to sink a solid shot. Also he boxes right out of the book.

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WCOP (1150 on your dial) and WLAW (680 on your dial) at 10 p. m.

JOHN TOTTY

Mother Mourns

While police dragged the Charles river (above) at Charlesbank Beach, West End, for the body of John Totty (above, insert), 8, of Cambridge, his mother, Mrs. Russell Totty (at right), sat on the river bank keeping mournful vigil. The boy had slipped off an inflated inner tube. His body was recovered after three hours of dragging.

Fruitless

Diver Fred Wallace prepares to dive in Wright's pond, Medford, for the body of Richard Scott, 16, Clarendon st., Malden, whose clothes were found on the bank of the pond. Two girls told police they heard cries for help. A subsequent search revealed the unclaimed clothes. Wallace will try again today.
